Communication in International Development

Doing Good or Looking Good?

Edited by Florencia Enghel, Jessica Noske-Turner

Series: Rethinking Development

International development stakeholders harness communication with two broad purposes: to do good, via communication for development and media assistance, and to communicate do-gooding, via public relations. This book aims to unpack the ways in which different efforts to do good via communication are combined with attempts to look good, be it to donor constituencies, policy-makers or journalists. This book is perfect for students and scholars in the areas of development communication and international development, and will also appeal to practitioners and officers working in international aid who are directly affected by the challenge to communicate for and about development.

Critical ICT4D (Information and Communication Technologies for Development)

Edited by Azadeh Akbari University of Twente, the Netherlands, Silvia Masiero University of Oslo, Norway

Series: Routledge Studies in Science, Technology and Society

The edited volume Critical ICT4D highlights the need for a paradigm change in theorising, designing and researching Information and Communication Technologies for Development (ICT4D). Offering thematic discussions in many development sectors with up-to-date case studies informed by recent research in the field, it sheds light on constructive contributions of critical ICT4D research. Written in an accessible language, the book will appeal to postgraduate students, fellow researchers, policymakers in the fields of sociology, development studies, STS, critical data studies, surveillance studies, international relations, public administration, and information systems.

ICT and Rural Development in the Global South

Willem van Eekelen

Series: Rethinking Development

This book dives into the achievements, opportunities, risks and dangers of ICT in the rural Global South, and takes a look at the likely future. Drawing on years of experience across 45 countries, as well as extensive original academic research, Willem van Eekelen situates the evolving role of ICT in wider development patterns in the Global South. This engaging and authoritative account of ICT and rural development will help students, academics, governmental policymakers, donors and investors wishing to support socio-economic development in the Global South.

Information and Communication Technology for Development (ICT4D)

Richard Heeks University of Manchester, UK

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

This is the first dedicated textbook to examine and explain these emerging phenomena of Information and Communication Technology for Development. It will help students, practitioners and researchers understand the place of ICTs within development; the ICT-enabled changes already underway; and the key issues and interventions that engage ICT4D practice and strategy. The book uses extensive in-text diagrams, tables and boxed examples with chapter-end discussion and assignment questions and further reading. Supported by online activities, video links and session outlines and slides, this textbook provides the basis for undergraduate, postgraduate and online learning modules on ICT4D.

Media and Development

Richard Vokes University of Adelaide, Australia

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

The text provides advanced undergraduate, and postgraduate, students with an introduction to the key theoretical perspectives in both media theory and development studies. It also brings these two bodies of theory into dialogue with each other, by examining the ways in which both media and development produce social changes (both intended and unintended), and by looking at how media has been, and could be, 'harnessed' by development agencies, developing world governments, NGOs, and peoples in the developing world as part of their wider attempts to achieve positive social change.

Mobile Technology and Social Transformations

Access to Knowledge in Global Contexts

Edited by Stefanie Felsberger, Ramesh Subramanian

Series: Rethinking Development

This book investigates the ways in which the mobile telephone has transformed societies around the world, bringing both opportunities and challenges. At a time when knowledge and truth are increasingly contested, the book asks how mobile technology has changed the ways in which people create, disseminate, and access knowledge. With case studies from Hong Kong, South Korea, India, Syria, Egypt, Botswana, Brazil, and the US, this book provides an important account of the changing nature of our access to knowledge, and is key reading for students, researchers, activists and policy makers with an interest in technology and access to knowledge.

Human Security in Disease and Disaster

Natasha Lindstaedt

This timely new textbook lays bare the ways in which disease and disaster can turn politicians into global leaders or national liabilities. It explains the impact of crises on development and human security and explores how states and societies can respond more effectively. Written primarily for the student of politics, but also drawing from public health, public policy and environmental studies, the book investigates the threats posed by disease and disasters, and demonstrates how states can shape the ways in which these crises unfold. The book delves deep into how state response to these challenges can impact political and economic stability.

Spoiler Groups and UN Peacekeeping

Peter Nadin , Patrick Cammaert , Vesselin Popovski

Series: Adelphi series

This book argues that the UN is peacekeeping in places where there is no peace to keep. This book is a policy guide for UN missions. It contemplates the challenging nature of non-permissive UN mission environments and offers a challenge to the UN to think afresh about the way it undertakes missions in these settings.

The Anthropology of Peace and Reconciliation

Pax Humana

Nigel Eltringham University of Sussex, UK

Series: Critical Topics in Contemporary Anthropology

This book offers a uniquely comparative, case-study perspective on the anthropology of peace and reconciliation. In the contemporary world, the end of violent conflict often gives way to one, or a combination, of five interventions designed to strengthen 'peace' and facilitate 'reconciliation'. Exploring the five interventions through detailed ethnographic accounts from around the world, this book is essential reading for scholars of peace studies, conflict resolution studies, and those taking an anthropological approach to conflict, violence, human rights and law.

Cash Transfers for Poverty Reduction

An International Operational Guide

Francisco V. Ayala , David Lawson University of Manchester, UK

Series: Routledge Textbooks in Development Economics

Over the last 20 years, more than 100 countries have implemented social safety nets, targeted at the poorest and most vulnerable. Impact evaluations have shown the effectiveness of these, and policy makers have explored different methods of delivery, including cash transfers. This book offers the first systematic discussion of the design and implementation of poverty reduction schemes, and cash transfer programmes in particular. The authors also draw on their own practical experience and present global case studies in order to show the effects that these decisions have on operations and outcomes.

2ND EDITION

Development Economics

Theory and Practice

Alain de Janvry University of California Berkeley, USA,
Elisabeth Sadoulet University of California Berkeley, USA

This second edition of Development Economics: Theory and Practice continues to provide students and practitioners with the perspectives and tools they need to think analytically and critically about the current major economic development issues in the world. Alain de Janvry and Elisabeth Sadoulet identify seven key dimensions of development: growth, poverty, vulnerability, inequality, basic needs, sustainability, and quality of life, and use them to structure the contents of the text. The authors demonstrate how diagnostics, design of programs and policies, and impact evaluation can be used to seek new solutions to the suffering and violence caused by development failures.

Globalization, Planning and Local Economic Development

Andrew Beer , Terry L. Clower University of North Texas, USA

This textbook is concerned with economic development at the local, community or regional scale. Its aim is to provide students with a comprehensive introduction to contemporary thinking about locally-based economic development, how growth can be planned and how that development can be realised. In addition to a wealth of case studies and pedagogical features, the book is also complemented by a comprehensive range of online resources. In offering a full toolkit of economic development knowledge, techniques and strategies, this text will thoroughly prepare students for a career in urban planning, transport planning, human geography and applied economic analysis.

Social Entrepreneurship and Sustainable Development

Edited by Archana Singh Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Mumbai, India, Edakkandi Meethal Reji Tata Institute of Social Sciences, Mumbai, India

Series: Towards Sustainable Futures

This volume discusses the interface between social entrepreneurship and sustainable development along with their inter-linkages. It traces the role of social entrepreneurship and innovations in societal transformation in creating sustainable societies, especially in developing nations, and for socially disadvantaged groups (the poor, women and young people), as they address environmental and ecological issues apart from wealth creation. It will be useful to those in development studies, social entrepreneurship, sustainable development, environmental studies, public policy, political sociology, non-profit, corporate, and public sectors, development practitioners, and international bodies.

Southern-Led Development Finance

Solutions from the Global South

Edited by Diana Barrowclough , Kevin P. Gallagher , Richard Kozul-Wright

Series: Rethinking Development

This book examines some of the innovative new south-south financial arrangements and institutions that have emerged in recent years, as countries from the Global South seek new ways to transform their economies and to shield themselves from global economic turbulence. At a time when governments and businesses frustrated by the traditional North-dominated mechanisms and international financial system are seeking new approaches to investment, trade and finance, this book is a timely contribution to the debate. With insights from both theory and practice, it will be of interest to practitioners, policy makers, researchers and students working on development finance.

Dear Development Practitioner

Advice for the Next Generation

Edited by Simon Milligan, Lee Wilson

Series: Rethinking Development

In this book, influential development practitioners reflect on their careers by writing letters of advice to their younger selves. Sharing their successes and failures, the challenges and barriers they have encountered, and the changes and continuities within their work, these deeply personal accounts provide an invaluable window into the world of development practice. This book will inspire those about to embark on their professional careers and remind new entrants and current development practitioners alike how much there remains to be done.

Reformers in International Development

Five Remarkable Lives

David de Ferranti

Series: Rethinking Development

This book brings to life the remarkable stories of five exceptional international development leaders and influencers: Ngozi Okonjo-Iweala, Domingo Cavallo, Ela Bhatt, Dzingai Mutumbuka, and Adolfo Figueroa. Together, their experiences and accomplishments challenge us to rethink conventional notions of leadership and international development and to reflect on how others from Africa, Asia, and Latin America will change the world in decades ahead. While many books have been written on what should be done to help rising nations thrive, this one takes readers inside the human story of who brings about change and how.

Researching Development NGOs

Global and Grassroots Perspectives

Edited by Susannah Pickering-Saqqa

Series: Rethinking Development

This book offers a critical insight into how the study of NGOs can be more theoretically grounded and methodologically creative. Rather than evaluating the impact of NGO work, this is a book about how researchers and practitioners can better understand what NGOs do and how they operate. Bringing together work from a range of NGO researchers working across diverse disciplines and at varied stages of their academic careers, the collection is supported by recent case studies in the field as well as 'dilemma boxes' and discussion questions in every chapter.

Aid Power and Politics

Edited by Iliana Olivé, Aitor Pérez

Series: Rethinking Development

Why it is that countries spend so much money on aid for the well-being of non-citizens outside their borders? Aid Power and Politics delves into the political roots of aid policy, demonstrating how and why governments across the world use aid for global influence. Bringing together insight from international relations and development studies, the book argues that individual countries both have the capacity to shape global trends, and are at the same time shaped by global norms. This book will be an important read for international development students, researchers, practitioners and policy makers.

Geopolitics and Development

Marcus Power

This textbook examines the historical emergence of development as a form of governmentality, from the end of empire to the Cold War and the War on Terror. It illustrates the various ways in which the meanings and relations of development as a discourse, an apparatus and an aspiration, have been geopolitically imagined and enframed. Primarily intended for scholars and post-graduate students in Development Studies, Human Geography, African studies and International Relations, this book provides an engaging, invaluable and up-to-date resource for making sense of the complex entanglement between geopolitics and development past and present.

South-North Dialogues on Democracy, Development and Sustainability

Edited by Cristina Fróes de Borja Reis, Tatiana Berringer

Series: Rethinking Development

This book shows how bringing together experts from the Global South and the Global North can help us to understand and combat global economic, political, and social inequalities. For too long, the world's problems have been viewed through the narrow conceptual lenses of the Global North. This book lays the groundwork for a new approach- a truly global approach to political economy. The book will be of great interest to students, researchers, and experts in international relations, global development, and international political economy, and to anyone looking for new perspectives on pernicious problems.

Doing Political Ecology

Edited by Gregory L. Simon , Kelly Kay

Since its inception, the field of political ecology has served as a critical hub for inclusive and transformative environmental inquiry. Doing Political Ecology offers a distinctive entry point into this ever-growing field and argues that our scholarly "foundations", today more than ever, comprise a cross-cutting latticework of research approaches and concepts. Each chapter astutely grounds key methodological, theoretical, topical, and conceptual approaches that animate a range of influential, cutting-edge, and complementary approaches for "doing" political ecology.

Rural Development

Adam Pain, Kjell Hansen

Rural Development is a textbook that critically examines economic, social and cultural aspects of rural development efforts both in the global north and in the global south. By consistently using examples from the north and the south the book highlights similarities of processes as well as differences in contexts. The book is written in a way that makes it accessible for undergraduates while at the same time opens for the kind of deeper reading used by master students and Ph.D.'s. Every chapter is linked to discussion questions as well as suggested further readings and useful websites.

Prevention of Violence Against Women and Girls

Mainstreaming in Development Programmes

Tamsin Bradley, Janet Gruber

Series: Rethinking Development

This book argues that women and girls are vulnerable across all areas of society, and that a commitment to end violence against women and girls needs to be embedded into all development programmes. It presents an innovative framework for sensitisation and action across development programmes, based on emerging best practices and lessons learnt, and illustrated through a number of country contexts and a range of programmes. Drawing on nearly three decades of experience working on gender, health and violence against women programmes as both practitioners, and academics, the authors present key lessons which can be used by both students, researchers and practitioners alike.

Aid and Development

John Overton Victoria, University of Wellington, NZ,
Warwick Murray Victoria University of Wellington, New Zealand

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

This book provides an overview of what aid is, how it has changed over time, and how it is practiced, as well as debates about whether aid works, for whom, and what its future might be. It is an important resource for students, development workers and policy makers seeking an understanding of how aid works. The text shows how 'aid' is a contested and fluid concept that involves a wide and changing variety of policies, actors and impacts. Each chapter includes case studies, chapter summaries, discussions, weblinks and further reading, to help strengthen the reader's understanding.

Foreign Aid

Policy and Practice

Phyllis R. Pomerantz Sanford School of Public Policy, Duke University, USA

Foreign Aid: Policy and Practice offers a complete overview of the basics of foreign aid. Who is it for? Who pays for it? Why does it exist? What is it spent on? How much is it? And most importantly, does it work? Drawing on the author's 25 years' experience in development practice and 15 years in teaching, the book reflects on recent efforts to accelerate aid's impact and concludes by taking a balanced look at the future of aid. Perfect for university teaching at advanced undergraduate and graduate levels, this book will also encourage development practitioners, policy makers and members of the public to engage in more informed debates about aid and development finance.

Daniel Hammett

Series: The Basics

How do we try to make the world a better place, when the challenges of poverty, disease, war, conflict, and climate change continue to impact millions of lives? Global Development: The Basics is a lively and engaging introduction to the shifting landscape of global development, right from its origins, to present-day problems, and on to what the future for global development might look like. It investigates whose voices are included or silenced in dominant approaches to development. Covering key topics in the field, from economics and politics, through to gender and climate change, this book is perfect for readers starting out in their understanding of global development.

The Future of Aid

Global Public Investment

Jonathan Glennie

What went wrong with foreign aid? Despite many positive changes, poverty is not history, and the very idea of foreign aid is now under sustained attack by administrations around the world. The Future of Aid calls for a wholesale restructuring of the aid project, a totally new approach fit for the challenges of the 21st century: Global Public Investment. Engagingly written by a well-known expert in the field, this book sets out a powerful roadmap for an evolution in the way that we think about aid, global cooperation, and the need to back up our ambitious global objectives with public money.

Border Culture

Theory, Imagination, Geopolitics

Victor Konrad , Anne-Laure Amilhat Szary

Series: Routledge Borderlands Studies

This book introduces readers to the cultural imaginings of borders: the in-between spaces in which transnationalism collides with geopolitical cooperation and contestation. It provides an extensive and critical vision of border culture on the move, drawing on numerous examples worldwide and a growing international literature across border and cultural studies. It shows how border culture develops in the human imagination and manifests in human constructs of "nation" and "state", as well as in transnationalism. The book will be an essential read for students and researchers across border studies, geopolitics, geography, and cultural studies.

Migration in Africa

Shifting Patterns of Mobility from the 19th to the 21st Century

Edited by Michiel de Haas , Ewout Frankema

This book introduces readers to the age of intra-African migration, a period from the mid-19th century onwards in which the centre of gravity of African migration moved decisively inwards. Most books tend to zoom in on Africa's external migration during the earlier intercontinental slave trade and the more recent outmigration to the global north, but this book argues that migration within the continent has been far more central to the lives of Africans over the course of the last two centuries. By taking a broad historical and continent-wide perspective, this book explores the distinctions between the more immediate drivers of migration and deeper patterns of change over time.

4TH EDITION

Migration Theory

Talking across Disciplines

Edited by Caroline B. Brettell, James F. Hollifield

The revised fourth edition of Migration Theory continues to offer a one-stop synthesis of contemporary thought on migration. Editors Caroline B. Brettell and James F. Hollifield remain committed to include coverage that is comparative and global in scope while enhancing similarities and differences between academic fields. Designed for undergraduate and graduate courses in migration studies, a primary goal of the text is to assist instructors in guiding students who may have little background on migration to, understand important issues and debates. This makes the book a valuable guide not only to the perspectives of one's own discipline but to those of cognate fields.

Refugee Voices

Performativity and the Struggle for Recognition

Rob Sharp

This book explores how participatory creative production can allow refugees to be recognized in emotional, legal and social ways. It also explains how decisions around participation in these forms of creative production can equally exclude refugee voices from the public sphere, inhibit recognition, and in fact lead to refugee misrecognition. Building on the concept of 'performative refugeeeness', it considers how refugee voices are ambivalently enacted in alternative forms of media. It will be of great interest to scholars and researchers of migration and refugee studies, media and culture studies, performance studies and communication studies.

The Ethics of Humanitarian Intervention

An Introduction

Jonathan Parry University of Birmingham, UK

Series: The Ethics of ...

Few topics generate as much controversy and debate as armed humanitarian intervention. Military force involves death and destruction, as well as interfering in other countries' domestic affairs. But, crucially, non-intervention is also controversial. When confronted with humanitarian crises abroad, many feel that outsiders are not only justified in using force to halt the abuses, but that they must do so. The Ethics of Humanitarian Intervention: An Introduction offers a guide to these ethical debates. It is ideal reading for students and researchers in philosophy, applied ethics, politics and international relations.

The Humanitarian Machine

Reflections from Practice

Edited by Diego Fernandez Otegui, Daryl Yoder-Bontrager

Series: Routledge Humanitarian Studies

In The Humanitarian Machine aid workers reflect on their own experiences of working in crisis. As they write about their work and the ways in which they each approach the challenges of helping people, they comment on some of the most vexing issues facing the humanitarian sector. Each speaks from their own perspective, asking tough questions, sharing thoughtful reflections about their ongoing work and unpacking what it really means to be a humanitarian worker. The stories they tell, whether recounting a specific experience or reflecting on years of practice, reveal the dilemmas they face and demystify the overly romanticized aura that sometimes surrounds humanitarian practice.

The Humanitarian Parent

Balancing Work and Family in the Aid Sector

Merit Hietanen

Series: Routledge Humanitarian Studies

For a long time, the aid worker was typified by the lone white male, flying from place to place, and seeing his family during the holidays. But now, as the world changes and the sector diversifies, how can family life be reconciled with the challenges and travel commitments of this particularly difficult career? It doesn't need to be this way. The book points a way for organisations to adopt policies that support mothers and fathers. As well as being a useful guide for aid professionals who are themselves navigating these issues, the book will be perfect for organisations looking to reform, and for students wishing to understand the realities of a career in aid.

The Vulnerable Humanitarian

Ending Burnout Culture in the Aid Sector

Gemma Houldey

Series: Routledge Humanitarian Studies

This book challenges the prevalence of stress and burnout culture within the aid sector, laying bare the issues of power, agency, security and wellbeing that continue to trouble organisations and staff. Proposing new ways of addressing wellbeing that are sensitive to the multi-faceted personalities and lived experiences of people working on aid and development programmes, The Vulnerable Humanitarian is essential reading both for current aid sector employees and for prospective employees and students.

Understanding Humanitarian Diplomacy

Principles and Practice

Edited by Hafize Zehra Kavak

Series: Routledge Humanitarian Studies

This book introduces readers to the development, principles, and philosophy of humanitarian diplomacy, before demonstrating how it works in practice, using a range of case studies from humanitarian work in the field. Humanitarian diplomacy seeks to create avenues to persuade decision makers and opinion leaders to act, at all times, in the interests of vulnerable people and with full respect for fundamental humanitarian principles. Bringing an excellent balance of theory and practice, this book will be a perfect guide for students and practitioners looking to understand the historical, philosophical, legal, and practical foundations of humanitarian diplomacy.

Understanding the Humanitarian World

Daniel Maxwell , Kirsten Gelsdorf

Series: Global Institutions

Conflict and disaster have been part of human history for as long as it has been recorded. Today a large and complex 'global humanitarian response system' made up of a multitude of local, national, and international actors carries out a wide variety of responses. Understanding this intricate system, and the forces that shape it are the core focus of this book. This book serves as a valuable introductory text to the way humanitarian action operates in the 21st century. It will be essential reading for students and practitioners or anyone with an interest in humanitarian action, international humanitarian and human rights law, disaster management and international relations.

Africapitalism

Sustainable Business and Development in Africa

Edited by Uwafiokun Idemudia York University, Canada, Kenneth Amaeshi University of Edinburgh, UK

Using theory, empirical research and case studies, this book explores the changing nature of business in Africa and how businesses can actively contribute to the development of Africa. It uses (and critically analyses) the concept of Africapitalism – a management idea and movement which seeks to blend the best of African values and Western management theories as a basis for sustainable development in Africa – to understand the subtle factors that underpin business decisions in Africa.

Challenging Southeast Asian Development

The shadows of success

Jonathan Rigg University of Bristol, UK

Over the course of the last half century, the growth economies of Southeast Asia – Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, Singapore, Thailand and Vietnam – have transformed themselves into middle income countries. This book looks at how the very success of these economies has bred new challenges, novel problems, and fresh tensions, while hang-overs from years of underdevelopment also sometimes remain to be resolved. Presenting an interesting analysis on the problems of development, this book is an important contribution to Southeast Asian Studies, Development Studies and Environmental Studies.

Community-Led Development in Practice

We Power Our Own Change

Edited by Elene Cloete, Gunjan Veda

Series: Rethinking Development

In the last decade, the international development sector has been re-examining its ways of thinking, being, and doing, and we have seen a growing consensus around the need to centre communities in development. However, there is little clarity on what such centring entails and how it can be achieved. This book addresses this gap by highlighting what community-led practices look like and how they compare across different sociocultural and organisational landscapes. The book will interest funders, organisations and practitioners, as well as policy makers, students, and researchers looking for non-western, non-dominant, everyday stories of change.

Tourism and Development in the Developing World

David J. Telfer Brock University, Ontario, Canada,
Richard Sharpley University of Central Lancashire, UK

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

Tourism is widely considered to be an important factor in socio-economic development, particularly in less developed countries - but despite almost universal recognition of tourism's development potential, the extent to which economic and social progress is linked to the growth of a country's tourism sector remains a topic of intense debate. This book offers a thorough overview of the tourism-development relationship. Focusing specifically on the less developed world and drawing on contemporary case studies, the updated second edition questions widely-held assumptions on the role of tourism in development and seeks to highlight the challenges faced in tourism-based development.

Inequality Studies from the Global South

Edited by David Francis, Imraan Valodia, Edward Webster

Series: Routledge Inequality Studies

This book offers an innovative, interdisciplinary approach to thinking about inequality, and to understanding how inequality is produced and reproduced in the global South. This exciting interdisciplinary collection brings together scholars from across the global South, and indeed the North, to address broad thematic areas and concludes by suggesting alternatives for addressing inequality in the global South and around the world. The innovative ideas and theories put forward by this volume make it an essential read for students and researchers of global inequality across the fields of sociology, economics, law, politics, global studies, and development studies.

Researching South-South Development Cooperation

The Politics of Knowledge Production

Edited by Emma Mawdsley, Elsje Fourie, Wiebe Nauta

Series: Rethinking Development

Over the last two decades the expanding role of Southern countries as development partners has led to tectonic shifts in global development ideas, practices, norms and actors. This book examines this rapidly growing and complex phenomenon, asking to what extent existing assumptions, conceptual frameworks and definitions of 'development' need to be reframed in the context of researching this new landscape. This book will be of interest to anyone conducting research on development in the Global South, whether they are a practitioner or policy maker, or a student or researcher in politics, international development, area studies, or international relations.

South-South Development

Peter Kragelund Roskilde University, Denmark

Series: Routledge Perspectives on Development

The book examines the historical background for the current situation: why it suddenly took off again approximately a decade ago; the various vectors of engagement and their interrelatedness; the actors involved; the affect of revitalisation of South-South development to cooperation 'as it was'; and how it affects the rest of the Global South. It offers a unique combination of in-depth insights and secondary data on South-South development, presenting a 'state-of-the-art' account aimed at students as well as practitioners in disciplines such as International Development Studies, International Relations, Geography, Anthropology, Global Studies and International Political Economy.
