Cosmopolitan Husserl

From Transcendental Phenomenology to the Ethics of Renewal

Edited by Curtis Hutt University of Nebraska Omaha, USA, Halla Kim Sogang University, South Korea

Series: Routledge Studies in Twentieth-Century Philosophy

This volume reflects on Husserl's articles published in the Japanese magazine Kaizō in 1923. It addresses the cosmopolitan nature of Husserl's work, as well as the enduring appeal of Husserl's cultural phenomenology for today's globalized age. The chapters explore Husserl's earliest work on European Crisis, his unexpected interest in history, as well as his overlooked contributions on religion, politics, and the ethics of renewal. Finally, the volume concludes with new translations of the first Kaizō article published in 1922, as well as an early history of Husserlian phenomenology in Japan.

Fichte's Aesthetic of Striving

Context and Development

Edited by Kienhow Goh National University of Singapore

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth-Century Philosophy

This book explores Fichte's theory of sensibility, focusing on its theoretical and practical significance. The first half examines the context and development of a "philosophy of striving" in Practical Philosophy, explains the background of Fichte's aesthetics, and discusses Kant's sensationalist view of pleasure. The second half explores how the investigations in Practical Philosophy reemerge in the Jena period through the theory of aesthetic experience and artistic creation, theory of moral deliberation, and theory of truth and justification (particularly in philosophy) and illustrates the pivotal role Fichte assigns to feelings in human spiritual development.

Friedrich Schleiermacher's Philosophy of Religion

Historical and Contemporary Perspectives

Edited by Stefan Lang Martin Luther University of Halle-Wittenberg, Germany, Klaus Viertbauer Catholic University Eichstätt-Ingolstadt, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in the Philosophy of Religion

This volume provides a comprehensive account of Friedrich Schleiermacher's philosophy of religion. The first section situates Schleiermacher in the context of the 19th-century philosophy of religion. These chapters analyse his relation to thinkers such as Kant, Fichte, Hegel, Schelling, Kierkegaard, and Heidegger, as well as to prominent theologians in the Protestant and Catholic traditions. The second section explores different aspects of Schleiermacher's philosophy of religion such as absolute dependence, religious feelings, and historical transformations. Finally, section three addresses how Schleiermacher's insights can contribute to contemporary philosophy of religion.

John Henry Newman and Contemporary Philosophy

Edited by Frederick D. Aquino Southern Methodist University, USA, Joe Milburn University of Navarra, Spain

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth-Century Philosophy

While John Henry Newman's writings have long received the attention of historians, theologians, and literary critics, they have largely been neglected by philosophers. However, Newman's importance as a philosopher is just now beginning to be acknowledged. This volume brings together leading philosophers and Newman scholars to explore the contours of his philosophical thought and to show its relevance to contemporary philosophy. The chapters explore, develop, and evaluate Newman's thought considering recent work in epistemology, philosophy of religion, moral philosophy, and philosophy of education.

Kierkegaard and Mysticism

Reception, Influence, Resonance

Edited by Hjørdis Becker-Lindenthal

Series: Contemporary Theological Explorations in Mysticism

Kierkegaard and Mysticism brings together scholars who show that reading Søren Kierkegaard from the perspective of mysticism not only sheds new light on the Dane's thought but also offers a fresh approach to mysticism as such, considering its relevance for existential questions, ethics, inter-faith dialogues, and socio-political criticism. It will be of interest not only to Kierkegaard scholars but also to theologians and philosophers working on mysticism and intellectual history.

Sellers and Davidson in Dialogue

Truths, Meanings, and Minds

Edited by Willem A. de Vries University of New Hampshire, USA, Marc A. Joseph University of Central Missouri, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in American Philosophy

Wilfrid Sellars and Donald Davidson were two of the most influential American philosophers of the twentieth century. This volume explores the similarities and differences between them and addresses the deep relations of their views on mind, language, and knowledge. The chapters demonstrate how, despite coming from different assumptions and methodologies, Sellars and Davidson converge on a view that essentially erases the philosophy of language as a separate discipline and embeds it in the philosophy of action.

The Philosophy of Will

A Reexamination of Late Modern German Philosophy

Anthony K. Jensen Providence College, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Nineteenth-Century Philosophy

This book argues that the history of 19th-century German philosophy has neglected a crucial narrative: the rich tradition of the philosophy of 'Will'. It examines the interconnected philosophies of 'Will' of Goethe, Schelling, Schopenhauer, Hartmann, Mainländer, Bahnsen, and Nietzsche. The book shows that the 19th-century conception of Will is fundamentally different than the commonplace use of Will as a synonym for motivated agency. By focusing on these Will theorists, it reveals a clearer interrelation between philosophy and the wider history of German intellectual culture. Finally, it reexamines these thinkers' positions in the history of philosophy.

The History and Philosophy of Boredom

Edited by Andreas Elpidorou University of Louisville, USA, Josefa Ros Velasco Universidad Complutense Madrid, Spain

Series: Rewriting the History of Philosophy

From Lucretius's horror loci and Buddhist drowsiness to the religious boredom of acedia and the philosophical explorations of Kant, Schopenhauer, Kierkegaard, and Heidegger, boredom has long been a subject of philosophical fascination. The History and Philosophy of Boredom explores boredom's intellectual history from its early origins to its contemporary manifestations. Containing 18 specially commissioned chapters, the volume is essential reading for students and researchers in the history of philosophy, emotion studies, phenomenology, and moral psychology. It will also interest scholars in religion, classics, sociology, and the history of psychology.

Too Weird to Believe, Too Plausible to Deny

Mind-Blowing Philosophical Ideas

Edited by Cliff Sosis Coastal Carolina University, USA.

Anyone new to philosophy soon encounters new ideas that challenge their hidden biases and cherished beliefs, or are at odds with common sense and tradition. Yet, these philosophical ideas are backed by strong arguments, arguments so strong that it's difficult to identify what is wrong with them. This book explores these strange yet cogent ideas in 29 short, clear chapters written by some of the best philosophers alive today. Each chapter starts with a seemingly counterintuitive philosophical conclusion and a simple, accurate description of the underlying argument supporting the conclusion, including historical and cultural context.

The Philosophy of Georg Simmel

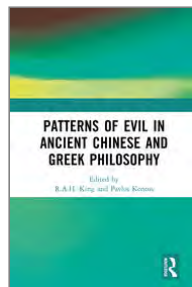

Frederick C. Beiser Syracuse University, USA

Georg Simmel's books, including The Philosophy of Money, moved sociology away from a strict concern with empiricism and helped establish the sociology of society, culture and ethics as fields of study. Less well-known is that Simmel's intellectual outlook was greatly influenced by his lifelong love of philosophy, especially Kant. It is this philosophical Simmel that Frederick C. Beiser, a renowned scholar of German philosophy, explores in this fascinating and important book. Essential reading for both philosophers and sociologists alike, particularly those studying nineteenth century philosophy and the history of sociology.

Patterns of Evil in Ancient Chinese and Greek Philosophy

Edited by R.A.H. King University of Bern, Switzerland,
Pavlos Kontos University of Patras, Greece

The roots of evil are often held to be Biblical, but philosophers in ancient China and Greece were conversant with the phenomena and languages of evil. This volume provides a comparative examination of patterns of evil in the early Chinese and Greek traditions. With no genealogical connections to rely on, this volume utilizes the notion of "patterns" to address worries of methodological and ethical incommensurability, and to show what this means for the practice of comparative philosophy. In the case of evil, this methodology requires diving deep into the linguistic and political murk where evil lurks, with its deep roots in human dispositions for experience and action.

2ND EDITION

Plotinus

Eyjólfur K. Emilsson University of Oslo, Norway

Series: The Routledge Philosophers

Plotinus (AD 205–270) was the founder of Neoplatonism, whose thought has had a profound influence on medieval philosophy, and on Western philosophy more broadly. This engaging book introduces and explains the full spectrum of Plotinus' philosophy for those coming to his work for the first time. This second edition has been revised and updated throughout, and includes a new chapter on badness, freedom, providence and responsibility. Also including a chronology, glossary of terms, and suggestions for further reading, Plotinus is an ideal introduction to this major figure in Western philosophy, and essential reading for students of ancient philosophy and classics.

Confucianism and the Continuation of Anti-Enlightenment

Xiaojie Chen

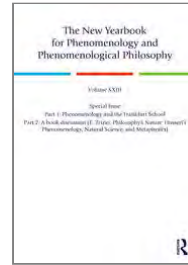

The book emphasises that the modern Japanese and Chinese use of Qimeng () to translate and interpret "Enlightenment" predominantly reflects the second interpretation of "Enlightenment" (i.e. Anti-Enlightenment) — a guidance or leading force. This interpretation betrays the spirit of equality, which was the most revolutionary facet of the 18th-century Enlightenment. In addition, it also presents a comparative analysis of Fraternity during the French Revolution and the Confucian benevolence. The book will appeal to scholars of Enlightenment, intellectual history, and comparative study of East-West thought.

Shifting Paradigms of Evil in Philosophy

Reading the Armenian Genocide with the Shoah

Imge Oranlı Arizona State University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book develops an interdisciplinary framework rooted in philosophy for addressing the political evils experienced around the world. It crystallizes the idea that evil is an inscrutable phenomenon, what the author calls the paradigm of evil's inscrutability. Tracing this paradigm through the legacies of five key philosophers—Plato, Augustine, Kant, Arendt, and Levinas—the author shows that by the time we arrive at 20th century, the framing of political evils like the Shoah as inscrutable and exceptional is profoundly constraining; it erases their continuity and connection with other atrocities, including the 1915 Armenian Genocide.

The Phenomenology of Essences

Edited by Till Grohmann KU Leuven, Belgium

Series: Routledge Research in Phenomenology

This volume explores the phenomenological notion of essence and related concepts. It identifies the centrality of essences in Husserl's transcendental phenomenology and traces their influence from the early phenomenological movement through to contemporary debates. The book discusses the role of essences in epistemology, philosophy of language, sociology, philosophical anthropology, transcendental phenomenology, phenomenological realism and idealism, imagination, metaphysics, and mathematics. It also reflects on the problematic relationship of essences to philosophical anthropology, philosophy of culture, and metaphysics.

Speaking with Houses

A Cross-Cultural Critique of Heidegger's Ontology

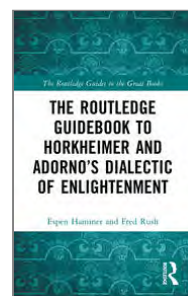

Michael Linzey

By exploring architectural poesis across a wide diversity of cultures, this book reveals that the Western notion of "Being" is not the universal foundation that is often supposed. This book is an invaluable resource for scholars in architectural theory, ontology, and cultural studies. Its interdisciplinary approach augments Heidegger's comprehensive critique of Western metaphysical assumptions, encouraging readers to reconsider the relationship between language, being, and architectural images.

The Routledge Guidebook to Horkheimer and Adorno's Dialectic of Enlightenment

Espen Hammer Temple University, USA, Fred Rush University of Notre Dame, USA

Series: The Routledge Guides to the Great Books

Composed whilst in exile during World War II, Horkheimer and Adorno's Dialectic of Enlightenment is one of the most influential texts of the Frankfurt School. A theoretical exploration of developed capitalism and the rise of authoritarianism in both fascism and communism, its core message remains highly relevant today. This is the first fully contextualized introduction to this foundational text in philosophy and social and political theory, addressing its central themes, reception, and influence. It is invaluable to students coming to the work for the first time, as well as more advanced students in philosophy, politics, sociology and the history of ideas.

Inquiry

Philosophical Perspectives

Edited by Aaron B. Creller University of North Florida, USA, Jonathan Matheson University of North Florida, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

Inquiry is a fundamental human practice. We have questions, and we want answers. These questions span numerous domains and range from the trivial to questions of the utmost importance. Without inquiry, our fate is bleak. Inquiry is also familiar. Everyone engages in inquiry. In fact, inquiry (of some sort) is something that we engage in every day. However, while inquiry is both fundamental and familiar, only recently have epistemologists turned to focus explicitly on inquiry. This volume brings together essays from several different perspectives on this growing topic in epistemology. It is the first volume focused solely on philosophical issues related to inquiry.

Knowledge and Rational Action

Why What We Know Matters for the Rationality of What We Do

Roman Heil Goethe University Frankfurt, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

This book develops the view that knowledge should be at the centre of our theory of practical rationality. It offers a defence of this slogan in the form of a knowledge-based decision theory. It offers solutions to challenges that invoke high-stakes scenarios, seemingly rational actions based on reasonable but false beliefs, and decision-making under risk and uncertainty. The emerging view brings together traditional and formal approaches to epistemology and the study of practical rationality. The resulting knowledge-based decision theory is embedded in a rich normative landscape, encompassing innovative accounts of excuses, rational acceptance, and the simplification of reasoning.

The Nature of the Sexes

Why Biology Matters

Tomás Bogardus Pepperdine University, USA.

This book challenges the widely-held view that sex is complex, and argues for a novel, gamete-based account of the sexes on which they are activated higher-order functions. To be male is to have the biological function of producing sperm, and to be female, eggs. The book also argues that the various meanings of 'gender' are all defined in terms of the sexes, and ordinary, biologically-based uses of our sex terms and pronouns are defended from objections.

A Common Humanity

Thinking About Love and Truth and Justice

Raimond Gaita University of Melbourne, Australia

Series: Routledge Classics

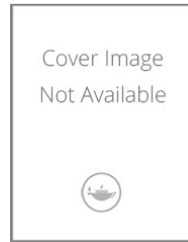

Holocaust denial, racism, genocide and the lasting harms inflicted by colonialism pose deep challenges to any idea of a common humanity. How can we include these and countless other examples of evil within our vision of a shared morality? These painful human incongruities are addressed in A Common Humanity. Drawing on the work of Arendt, Weil, Primo Levi and Iris Murdoch, amongst others, Raimond Gaita creates a beautifully written and provocative new picture of our common humanity. This Routledge Classics edition includes a new Preface and a substantial Postscript by the author.

Derrida

Ethics in Deconstruction

Edited by Barry Stocker

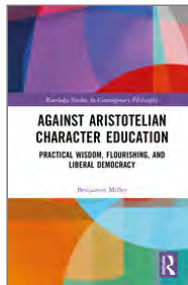

Series: Angelaki: New Work in the Theoretical Humanities

Ethics in Deconstruction is vital reading for any interested in Derrida and the ethical implications of deconstruction broadly defined. It offers a comprehensive set of essays on the ethics of deconstruction and deconstruction as an ethical enterprise. Derrida is the main focus, but essays also look at Sextus Empiricus, Kierkegaard, Heidegger, Arendt, Lévinas, Lyotard, Deleuze and others. The volume broadly defines ethics to include law, justice, politics, religion, and practical reason.

Against Aristotelian Character Education

Practical Wisdom, Flourishing, and Liberal Democracy

Benjamin Miller University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

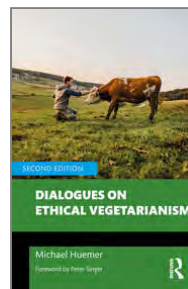

This book argues that Aristotelian character education cannot work in liberal democracies today. It shows that when we clearly understand the basic structure of Aristotle's value theory and correctly grasp the core requirements of liberalism, we will see that they are incompatible with one another through and through. Understanding the problematic structure of neo-Aristotelian education helps us to better grasp the demands of liberal democracy while also bringing attention to the neglected question of how education for democratic citizenship can be made to fit with equal respect and tolerance of all liberal-compatible ways of living and worldviews.

2ND EDITION

Dialogues on Ethical Vegetarianism

Michael Huemer University of Colorado, Boulder, USA.

Series: Philosophical Dialogues on Contemporary Problems

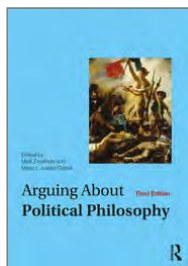

Worldwide every year, 83 billion animals are slaughtered on factory farms, at the end of brief lives full of suffering. Is it wrong to buy the products of this industry? In this book, two college students – a meat-eater and an ethical vegetarian – discuss this question in a series of dialogues conducted over five days. The two go on to discuss the vegan life, why people who accept the arguments often fail to change their behavior, and how vegans should interact with non-vegans. This Second Edition covers many new topics, from how to satisfy nutritional needs with plant-based foods to Progressive-inspired arguments for and against veganism.

3RD EDITION

Arguing About Political Philosophy

Edited by Matt Zwolinski University of San Diego, USA, Mario I. Juarez-Garcia Tulane University, USA.

Series: Arguing About Philosophy

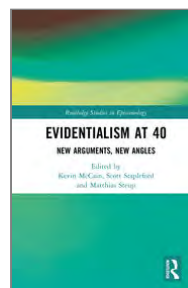

This Third Edition is the most complete, up-to-date, and interdisciplinary anthology of its kind. Its selections cover classic philosophical sources such as those from Thomas Hobbes and John Rawls, important works in political economy from thinkers like Adam Smith, Friedrich Hayek, and Karl Marx, and the writing of cutting edge contemporary theorists like Debra Satz, Jason Brennan, and Ta-Nehisi Coates. This edition has been substantially revised to make it more suitable for a growing number of courses in Philosophy, Politics, and Economics (PPE).

Evidentialism at 40

New Arguments, New Angles

Edited by Kevin McCain University of Alabama at Birmingham, USA, Scott Stapleford St. Thomas University, Canada, Matthias Steup University of Colorado Boulder, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

Conee and Feldman's landmark paper "Evidentialism" (1985) served as a launching point for an enormous research program in epistemology. This volume presents state-of-the-art research on issues related to evidentialism. It demonstrates the continuing relevance of evidentialist epistemology by bringing it into direct confrontation with some of its latest non-evidentialist rivals and by proposing new areas for exploration and development.

Exploring the Ethics of Clinical Xenotransplantation

Christopher Bobier Saint Mary's University of Minnesota, USA, Adam Omelianchuk Baylor College of Medicine, USA, Daniel J. Hurst Rowan-Virtua School of Osteopathic Medicine, USA

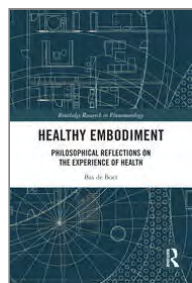

Due to the global shortage of organs for transplantation, there is increasing interest in cross-species transplantation, or xenotransplantation, among researchers and clinicians. This book provides an overview of the major ethical issues involved in xenotransplantation. Xenotransplantation touches on almost every area of bioethics: animal research, public health, patient selection, allocation, global justice, pediatric research, and informed consent. Each chapter provides a nuanced overview of the positions that have been offered on a specific topic and the authors seek to provide a way forward.

Healthy Embodiment

Philosophical Reflections on the Experience of Health

Bas de Boer University of Twente, The Netherlands

Series: Routledge Research in Phenomenology

This book provides a philosophical analysis of the experience of health and investigates how this experience is shaped by recent developments in medicine and public health. It argues that these developments shape how we experience the health of ourselves and others, as well as the way in which we distinguish between health and illness. Its starting point is that health is not so much an object with well-defined boundaries but is better understood as an embodied experience. The author develops a theory of healthy embodiment and argues that experiencing oneself as a healthy subject requires being made present as a healthy object by someone or something else.

How We Blame

A Theory of Moral Responsibility

Bana Bashour American University of Beirut, Lebanon

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This book presents a naturalistic account of moral responsibility that is neutral on the metaphysics of free will. It engages with empirical literature in experimental philosophy and psychology and draws on real-life case studies to illuminate the author's theory of moral responsibility. The author argues that agency requires an understanding of moral responsibility attributions, which requires that one understands one's intentional states and those of others. A distinctive feature of the author's account is that it makes room for cultural variability in our justifications of moral responsibility; those in different cultures may have different norms or expectations of one another.

Medical Ethics in the Catholic Tradition

Perspectives from Philosophy, Theology, Medicine, and the Law

Margaret M. Hogan University of Portland, USA, Edward M. Hogan Kenrick Glennon Seminary, USA, Annique K. Hogan Perelman School of Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, USA, Matthew J.D. Hogan Aramark

Series: Routledge Annals of Bioethics

This book is a comprehensive treatment of contemporary medical ethics from the Roman Catholic tradition. It brings together perspectives from philosophy, theology, medicine, and law to explore the traditions that undergird Catholic medical ethics. The authors' commitment to the Catholic tradition provides the foundational principles for addressing a wide range of issues including abortion, reproduction, cloning to produce children and for biomedical research, embryonic stem cell use, genetics as screening, testing, therapy, enhancement, engineering, specific special relations such as maternal/fetal, physician/patient, mentally ill/caretakers, health care, and end of life issues.

Moral Debt

Defending a New Account of Reparative Justice

Brian Yue Shun Wong

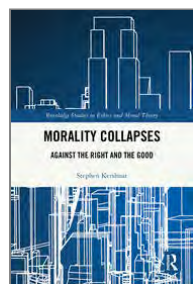

In face of historical injustices such as war, colonialism, slavery, and genocides, what responsibilities, if any, do the present generations owe—and to whom are such responsibilities owed? Drawing upon methods of political theory, empirical politics, legal philosophy, and applied ethics, this book advances the novel account of Collective Moral Debt Reparative Justice (CMDRJ). It aims to establish that descendants of victims inherit claims to reparation by which they can hold inheritors of perpetrators responsible for discharging. The book should interest scholars and practitioners alike, and is written for those who are interested in what we owe others in relation to our past.

Morality Collapses

Against the Right and the Good

Stephen Kershnar State University of New York at Fredonia, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This book argues that consequentialism and non-consequentialism are false because they face metaphysical and intuitional problems. The two theories exhaust the theories of the right, so there is no rightness. This result matters because it requires us to give up widely held beliefs regarding knowledge, moral responsibility, and reasons for action. The author's argument is unique because it focuses on applied-ethical arguments rather than metaethical issues. Specifically, it avoids metaethical discussions of whether morality explains our thoughts and actions, how we know about morality, and whether the denial of morality is self-defeating.

Paid Sexual Encounters among Men

A Study in Ethics and Law

Timothy F. Murphy University of Illinois College of Medicine, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Applied Ethics

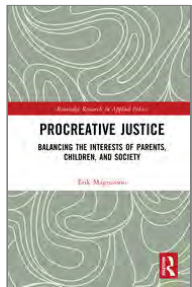

Male prostitution is poorly studied across academic disciplines, and this book represents the first sustained ethical analysis of the topic. It shows that paid sexual encounters among men belong on a spectrum of transactional sexual relationships and are not distinctive in a way that justifies condemnation. It also demonstrates that men buying and selling sexual encounters can consent in morally meaningful ways, without reinforcing status inequality. Finally, it reviews key constitutional law cases to show that the decriminalization of male prostitution is justified.

Procreative Justice

Balancing the Interests of Parents, Children, and Society

Erik Magnusson University of Manitoba, Canada

Series: Routledge Research in Applied Ethics

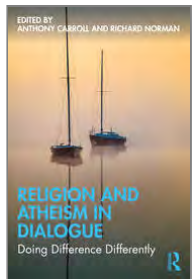

The decision to procreate is the decision to bring a morally considerable being into existence, one who will be exposed to the benefits and risks that accompany human life, and one who cannot consent to being born. The decision can also affect the lives of others, from its effects on population and sustainability to its effects on the distribution of resources. The various conflicting interests implicated by procreative decision-making can raise questions of justice. The author argues that taking stock of these interests leads to a narrower view of the conditions under which it is morally permissible to procreate and a more demanding conception of our procreative responsibilities.

Religion and Atheism in Dialogue

Doing Difference Differently

Edited by Anthony Carroll Anglican Church Costa del Sol West, Spain, Richard Norman

Of all disagreements, the gulf between those who believe in a religious mindset and those who don't is arguably one of the greatest. This fascinating book, based on conversations between religious and non-religious participants, asks if societies divided on such fundamental questions can nonetheless find some common ground. Religion and Atheism in Dialogue will interest anyone who is concerned about the clash between the religious and the secular and how to move beyond it, as well as students of ethics, philosophy of religion and religious studies.

Respect and Power

The Foundations of Critical Ethics and Politics

Roberto Mordacci Vita-Salute San Raffaele University, Italy

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

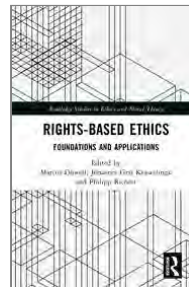

This book presents a historically informed and theoretically systematic theory of respect that challenges many of the presuppositions of the current debate in ethics and politics. It develops a theory of respect as the rule of power relations, which draws connections between Kant's critical philosophy and Critical Theory. Power is the fundamental force at work in social relations, and respect is the recognition of power with a critical stance that defines how power is to be used and regulated. A close confrontation with Arendt's and Foucault's analyses of power offers the opportunity to clarify in which sense respect is the rule of power relations.

Rights-Based Ethics

Foundations and Applications

Edited by Marcus Düwell Technical University Darmstadt, Germany, Johannes Graf Keyserlingk Ruhr-University Bochum, Germany, Philipp Richter Ruhr-University Bochum, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

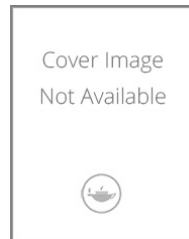

This volume contends that rights-based approaches in ethics not only offer a theoretical framework to explain complex normative concepts but they can also offer answers to some of today's most complex moral questions. Its chapters are divided into three thematic sections. The first section addresses the conceptual and foundational questions of rights-based ethics. The second section offers historical and cultural perspectives on rights. Finally, the third section explores how rights-based ethics can address applied issues related to climate change, health systems, global supply chains, and the finance industry.

Sport and Psychoanalysis

New Pathways into Sport Integrity

Edited by Sandra Meeuwssen

This book aims to explore the potential of a psychoanalytic approach in improving sport integrity, by presenting a diverse conceptual framework. The aim is to open up to the opportunities a psychoanalytic analysis offers, without pretending to be exhaustive, as there are many different roots and schools in the field of psychoanalysis. This book was originally published as a special issue of Sport, Ethics and Philosophy.

Sport and Species

Edited by S.P. Morris, Gabriela Tymowski-Gionet

This book is the first comprehensive examination of the complex intersection between sports, animal welfare, and ethical considerations. The chapters in this thought-provoking collection challenge conventional wisdom about animal participation in sporting activities. Distinguished scholars tackle pressing questions about animal agency, consent, and exploitation across a spectrum of activities—from traditional equestrian sports to controversial blood sports. Through diverse philosophical frameworks including consequentialism, virtue ethics, and the capabilities approach, the volume scrutinizes our moral obligations to non-human athletes.

Taking Moral Theorising Seriously

A Theory-First Approach to Moral Philosophy

Andrew Sneddon University of Ottawa, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

This book develops a novel account of methodology for moral philosophy. It focuses on the structural features of moral theories, specifically what is taken as input and the process of theorizing itself. Part 1 argues that we should use "contrastively successful" judgments as input. A moral judgment about a case must be shown to be interpersonally superior to alternatives to qualify as input for moral theorizing. Part 2 follows recent work on theoretical virtues in science to develop an account of virtues of moral theories. It then applies this account to the topic of agent-relativity and agent-neutrality.

The Ethics of Argumentation

Katharina Stevens University of Lethbridge, Canada

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book offers a new approach to the theory of argumentation that conceptualizes argumentation as a fundamentally ethical activity whose norms are grounded in moral reasons. It shows that ethics is needed for providing normative argumentation theory with its foundation and for offering arguers reliable guidance for decision-making both about which norms ought to govern their arguing and how they should shape each argument they make. It addresses problems faced by dominant normative approaches to argumentation, most notably that they are only reliable under unrealistic background conditions. Finally, it provides the groundwork for a systematic ethics of argumentation.

The Ethics of Digital Ghosts

Confucian, Mohist, and Zhuangist Perspectives on AI and Death

Alexis M. Elder University of Minnesota Duluth, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Applied Ethics

This book develops an ethics of digital ghosts using resources from classical Chinese philosophy. Confucianism, Mohism, and Zhuangism were remarkable for their rich, detailed discussions of the ethics of handling physical remains. This book updates and extends these concerns to apply to digital ghosts. It explores topics including the role of rituals and traditions in communal mourning, the epistemic consequences of fragmented standards for remembrance and data reuse, and the value of creative transformation and adaptation. The result is a psychologically plausible, culturally informed, and afterlife-neutral grounding for thinking about the ethics of digital ghosts.

The Origin of Our Knowledge of Right and Wrong

Franz Brentano

Series: Routledge Classics

Moving deftly through key figures in the history of philosophy, including Descartes and Mill, The Origin of Our Knowledge of Right and Wrong is a pioneering work of ethics that continues to influence both analytical and phenomenological traditions in philosophy. This Routledge Classics edition includes an account of Brentano's life and major works and a Foreword, both by Uriah Kriegel. Also included are a significant excerpt from Brentano's The Foundation and Construction of Ethics, and a historically important review by G.E. Moore of The Origin of Our Knowledge of Right and Wrong on the book's first publication.

The Proud Self

A Humean Ethics of Virtue

Lorenzo Greco University of L'Aquila, Italy

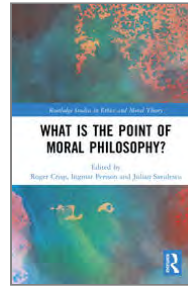

Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Philosophy

This book presents a novel interpretation of Hume as a proponent of sentimental virtue ethics. The book starts by developing an understanding of the self in Hume based on the passion of pride. By focusing on pride, it is possible to identify in Hume a firm notion of the self as having a sentimental nature that can be explained in narrative terms. The book shows how the narrative self connects to central issues in Hume's moral philosophy, including sympathy, the point of view from which we make moral judgements, the practical nature of ethics and the role that reflection plays in it, and the definition of perfect character.

What Is the Point of Moral Philosophy?

Edited by Roger Crisp University of Oxford, UK, Ingmar Persson University of Gothenburg, Sweden, Julian Savulescu National University of Singapore

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

Over the last half-century, moral philosophy has taken an applied turn, covering practical issues in areas such as medicine, business, the environment, and many others. But it has largely failed to examine itself. In this volume, distinguished contemporary ethicists examine what might be the point, if any, of moral philosophy. Perhaps the only philosopher to have addressed these issues head-on has been Ingmar Persson. His important arguments provide a starting point for debate and are examined and discussed by several contributors. But the volume goes beyond Persson's work to clarify the nature of the challenges to philosophical ethics and the variety of responses available.

What Should Individuals Do about Climate Change?

A Debate

Marion Hourdequin Colorado College, USA, Dan C. Shahr University of New Orleans, USA

Series: Little Debates about Big Questions

Climate change is a pressing problem. Does each of us have a moral responsibility to help tackle it? In this volume, Marion Hourdequin and Dan Shahr debate the timely issue of individual behavior and climate change, examining what it takes to live morally in a warming world. The two authors take turns responding to each other and then defending their ultimate conclusions. This volume is sure to draw attention to the question of "individual choice" in climate change debates and to help clarify some of the best thinking on this issue.

The Routledge Handbook of Philosophy of Games

Edited by C. Thi Nguyen University of Utah, USA, John R. Sagent Independent scholar

Series: Routledge Handbooks in Philosophy

Playing games is a basic human activity, and games raise a great number of fascinating philosophical questions. What, exactly, are we doing when we play a game? What is the value of games for human life? And could games be, or someday become, a form of art? Comprising 27 chapters by an international team of contributors, this Handbook is an outstanding reference source to the core concepts, problems and debates in this exciting subject, and is the first collection of its kind. As such, it is essential reading for students and researchers working in philosophy of games, philosophy of sport, digital aesthetics and game studies.

From Socrates to the Supreme Court

An Introduction to Philosophy through the Law

Ken Glazer University of Maryland, USA.

Philosophy and law are separate disciplines but they deal with many of the same issues, from the meaning of equality and liberty, the nature of knowledge, reasoning, and mental states, to the indeterminacy of language, causation, free will, luck, and personal identity. This textbook introduces philosophy to undergraduates in a new and refreshing way—by using cases, concepts, and doctrines from the law to illustrate philosophical issues. It introduces the major areas in the discipline: moral and political philosophy, epistemology, metaphysics, philosophy of mind and language, alongside philosophy's great thinkers.

The Essence of History

Edited by Aaron Turner Royal Holloway, University of London, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book brings together historical thinkers from a variety of disciplinary backgrounds to offer original interpretations of the essence of history. It addresses why it is that the essence of history itself cannot be so easily thematised or conceptualised. The chapters respond to questions such as: What is history? What, in the 'progress' of historical thought from antiquity to modernity, did we lose along the way? And what does it mean, if it means anything at all, to have history, to be historical?

A Dynamic Theory of Hylomorphism

Form as Activity

Jeremy W. Skrzypek Ohio Dominican University, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Metaphysics

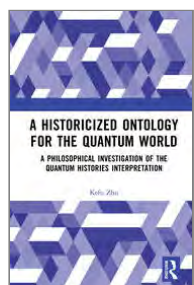

This book introduces a hylomorphic theory of material objects, according to which material objects are understood as composed of both matter and activity, where activity plays the role of form. This theory, "hyloenergeism", captures the dynamic nature of many of the objects of our experience. This book argues against structural and dispositional varieties of hylomorphism in favor of a third approach: hyloenergeism. Drawing on aspects of traditional Aristotelian hylomorphism and other contemporary occurrence-based theories of material objects, it argues that hyloenergeism has the resources to successfully avoid or resolve several major concerns for other competing hylomorphic views.

A Historicized Ontology for the Quantum World

A Philosophical Investigation of the Quantum Histories Interpretation

Kefu Zhu

This book discusses ontology in the quantum world and argues that it should be interpreted as historicized ontology. This perspective is advocated by quantum histories interpretation. Inspired by the nomological interpretation from Bohmian mechanics and the corresponding understanding of law of nature and logic, the ontology will be useful to solve the difficulties of confusing ontology and perplexing logical inference. The book will appeal to scholars and students of philosophy of science, metaphysics, and quantum theory.

Explanation and Understanding

Arnon Levy Hebrew University of Jerusalem, Israel

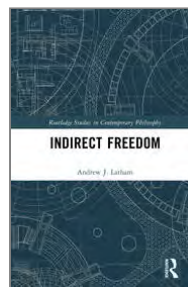

Series: New Problems of Philosophy

Science has multiple goals: to describe the world, as it is now; to predict the future and to make inferences about the past. But science also aims to understand the world – to explain why it is the way it is. But what does it take to explain a phenomenon? What philosophical questions are at stake? In this thorough and clearly written introduction to scientific explanation, Arnon Levy explores the following questions and more. Additional features – such as chapter summaries, suggestions for further reading, and a glossary – make this an excellent resource for students of philosophy of science, metaphysics and philosophy of psychology.

Indirect Freedom

Andrew J. Latham Aarhus University, Denmark

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

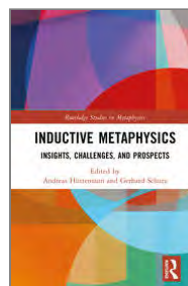

This book advances a new kind of compatibilist account of free will: indirect compatibilism. It is the first sustained philosophical analysis of the idea that the ordinary concept of free will is a conditional one. The book combines traditional philosophical analysis with empirical work—experimental philosophy and cognitive neuroscience—to produce a detailed description and defence of indirect compatibilism. Indirect compatibilism resolves two important problems in the free will literature: that people as a matter of fact do not accept that free actions can exist in a deterministic universe, and that few actions are under the direct control of standard psychological processes.

Inductive Metaphysics

Insights, Challenges, and Prospects

Edited by Andreas Hüttemann University of Cologne, Germany, Gerhard Schurz Heinrich Heine University Düsseldorf, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Metaphysics

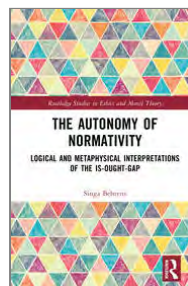

Inductive Metaphysics (IM) justifies metaphysical principles by inductive or abductive inferences from empirical evidence, and this volume is the first to provide a picture of current research in this branch of metaphysics. It explores IM as a continuously expanding and topical field with contributions in virtually all domains of the discipline. The chapters address the role of IM in the history of philosophy and contemporary philosophy, the central role of the method of abduction for IM, the relation of IM to metaphysical accounts of grounding, explanation, and evidence, the formation of concepts and IM, and the applications of IM in physics and in the life sciences.

The Autonomy of Normativity

Logical and Metaphysical Interpretations of the Is-Ought-Gap

Singa Behrens Bielefeld University, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Ethics and Moral Theory

While the Is-Ought Gap has recently been a topic of growing interest, most contributions are firmly fixed on logical, often quite technical accounts of the autonomy thesis. This book defends two complementary autonomy theses—a modal and ground-based thesis—that provide a deeper and more comprehensive understanding of the nature of the normative domain. Together these accounts capture best the informal idea that we cannot 'get' something normative from the non-normative. Moreover, the book relates the autonomy debate to other important metaethical debates.

The Cartesian Mind

Edited by Jorge Secada University of Virginia, USA, Travis Tanner Austin Peay State University, USA, Cecilia Wee National University of Singapore

Series: Routledge Philosophical Minds

Descartes is widely acknowledged as a central figure in the origins of modernity. The nature of his thought and of the role it played is, however, a matter of considerable dispute among experts. The Cartesian Mind covers the full extent of his work, not only placing it in its historical context but also exploring its reception, legacy, and contemporary significance. Descartes' work is central to all areas of philosophy, including epistemology, metaphysics, philosophy of mind, philosophy of science, and ethics. As such The Cartesian Mind is essential reading and an indispensable tool for all students and researchers in the discipline.

The Metaphysically Dynamic Universe

How Motion is the Essence of Time and Physical Reality

Stephen Barker University of Nottingham, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Metaphysics

This book develops a metaphysical framework in which time is motion through a higher dimension. In other words, time literally flows. It breaks through the long debate about time flow and temporal experience in metaphysics by offering a new approach that reconciles psychological time with the time of science. Our experience of change and our own being in time reveals a relentless motion or passage. This book rejects the orthodox view that motion is explained in terms of space and time; rather, it uses space and motion to define time. Furthermore, it solves puzzles of time, change, and persistence, and is consistent with special relativity.

The Phenomenology of the Second-Person Plural

Sarah Pawlett Jackson University of London, UK

Series: Routledge Research in Phenomenology

This book presents the case that there are forms of human interaction which should be understood as properly second-person plural. It engages with the work of Sartre, Levinas and contemporary phenomenology to show that this claim is not just about grammatical forms of address, but about the phenomenology and structure of our intersubjective experience. The book also offers a positive account of the second-person plural, supported by an understanding of subjectivity as necessarily embodied and embedded in the world. This account opens an exciting path for further analyses of complex multi-person intersubjectivities in small group contexts.

Thought Experiments and Personal Identity

Finding Ourselves

Simon Beck

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book provides an essential, comprehensive discussion on thought experiments and how they have featured throughout the history of the personal identity debate in analytic philosophy. Although many philosophical arguments employ thought experiments as a valuable methodological tool, there is a lack of focused discussion on the significant role these experiments play in the personal identity debate specifically. This book covers a range of central theories and examines how thought experiments have been featured throughout each.

Kant's Lasting Legacy

Essays in Honor of Béatrice Longuenesse

Edited by Stefanie Grüne Free University of Berlin, Germany, Colin Marshall University of Washington, USA

Series: Routledge Festschriften in Philosophy

Béatrice Longuenesse is one of the most important scholars of German philosophy in the past 50 years. This volume features essays written by Longuenesse's long-time interlocutors and former students that reflect on the influence of her work. In her earlier work, she shed light on the importance of subtle features of Kant's and Hegel's philosophical systems. Her more recent work has built on doctrines concerning the self and self-consciousness from Kant and other philosophers. Some essays engage directly with Longuenesse's work, while others focus on related themes. Together, the chapters express the importance of Longuenesse's accomplishments and the vibrant state of the field.

Leibniz, Classical Theism, and the Problem of Evil

Why Classical Theism Must Affirm That Our World is the Best of All Possible Worlds

Nathan A. Jacobs Vanderbilt University Divinity School, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Seventeenth-Century Philosophy

This book offers a defense of Leibniz's theodicy and his claim that our world is the best of all possible worlds. It considers Leibniz's rationale for "optimism," examines its roots in ancient and medieval thought, and highlights the very real challenges of evading optimism from within the framework of classical theism. It demonstrates the ways in which Leibniz is relevant to not only classical theists and students of Modern philosophy but also to contemporary philosophy of religion more generally and philosophical theologians who are concerned with the problem of evil.

The Imagination

Jean-Paul Sartre

Series: Routledge Classics

The Imagination is Sartre's first full philosophical work, presenting some of the basic arguments concerning phenomenology, consciousness and intentionality that were to mark his philosophy as a whole and be so influential in the course of twentieth-century philosophy. Essential reading for anyone interested in Sartre, phenomenology, and the history of 20th century philosophy. The translation has been revised throughout for this Routledge Classics edition. Also included is a revised translators' introduction and a new foreword. Also included is Maurice Merleau-Ponty's review of L'Imagination upon its publication in French in 1936.

Critique of Practical Music

Music and Moral Development

James O. Young University of Victoria, Canada

Series: Routledge Research in Aesthetics

This book offers a systematic survey of ethos theory: the theory according to which the right sort of music can have a positive or negative effect on moral development. It surveys the history of ethos theory from its origins in ancient Greece and ancient China, proceeding to trace its development through the Middle Ages into the early modern period. Next, the development of ethos theory is traced from the middle of the nineteenth century to the present. It also investigates what would count as evidence that ethos theory is correct, paying attention to the complex ways people experience music. Finally, the author evaluates the currently available empirical evidence for ethos theory.

Husserl on Depiction

Edited by Regina-Nino Mion Estonian Academy of Arts, Claudio Rozzoni University of Milan, Italy, John B. Brough Georgetown University, USA

Series: Routledge Research in Phenomenology

The publication of Husserliana XXIII "Phantasie, Bildbewusstsein, Erinnerung" in 1980 and John B. Brough's translation of it in 2005 increased interest in Edmund Husserl's philosophy of depiction. This volume is the first comprehensive collection in English that provides a systematic reading of Husserl's theory of depictive image consciousness. It explains the meaning of various concepts in Husserl's philosophy of depiction—such as Bildobjekt, Vergegenwärtigung, Perception — and examines the range and limits of the application of Husserl's depictive image consciousness to various art practices and media, and to other mental acts, e.g., phantasy, memory.

Contemporary Philosophy of Autism

Edited by Jami L. Anderson University of Michigan-Flint, USA, Simon Cushing University of Michigan-Flint, USA

This volume explores interesting and emerging philosophical questions related to autism. It approaches a wide range of issues that autism raises in social and political theory, ethics, philosophy of social science, epistemology, metaphysics, and law. The issues addressed include moral responsibility, autism and gender, knowledge acquisition, the double empathy problem, social cognition, vulnerability in interpersonal communication, masking, the neurodiversity movement and destigmatization, and the effectiveness of ABA therapy. Each of the contributors, many of whom self-identify as autistic, has a personal connection with autism.

Cyborg Rights

Extending Cognition, Ethics, and the Law

S. Orestis Palermos University of Ioannina, Greece

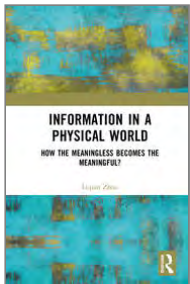

This book explores important ethical, legal, and rights-related ramifications of the hypothesis of extended cognition and the extended mind thesis. It highlights significant threats associated with technologies specifically dedicated to cognitive and mental extension, and examines the rationale and possible means for dealing with them. To underscore the serious impact of extension technologies, the book focuses on central concerns relating to mental privacy, mental integrity, and (extended) assault.

Information in a Physical World

How the Meaningless Becomes the Meaningful?

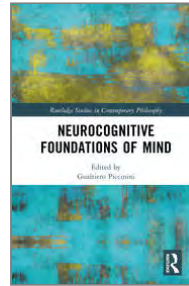

Liqian Zhou

The book develops a naturalistic perspective grounded in Peircean biosemiotics, aiming to construct a comprehensive theory of information, meaning, and intentionality. It reexamines key issues such as referential information, the metaphysics of form, misrepresentation, reference, and sense, offering new explanations and insights. It further argues the three types of reference—symbolic, indexical and iconic—are asymmetrically interdependent. The book will be of interest to researchers and advanced students in philosophy of mind, philosophy of language, philosophy of biology, philosophy of cognitive science, semiotics, biosemiotics and linguistics.

Neurocognitive Foundations of Mind

Edited by Gualtiero Piccinini University of Missouri–St. Louis, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

The rise of cognitive neuroscience has prompted a rethinking of levels, computation, representation, psychological explanation, and the relation between psychology and neuroscience. This book demonstrates the ways in which cognitive neuroscience supersedes traditional cognitive science and supports a unified, integrated, multilevel, mechanistic, neurocomputational account of the mind. The chapters address topics including computation, representation, explanation, perception, executive function, emotion, language, and motor control.

On Frege Puzzles

Why Propositions Are Not the Objects of Our Mental Attitudes

Stefan Rinner University of Duisburg-Essen, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Contemporary Philosophy

This book argues against the received view of propositional theory, according to which mental attitudes are relations held between agents and propositions. It argues that the propositional theory does not provide a solution to Frege's puzzle about belief. It also shows that the propositional theory cannot solve Schiffer's puzzle regarding de re belief, which uses highly plausible exportation and rationality principles for de re belief. The author proposes and develops a non-relational account of the attitudes in question that, together with a measurement account of the respective attitude ascriptions, provides a solution to both Frege's puzzle and Schiffer's puzzle.

Aquinas, Natural Law, and Social Ontology

Historical and Contemporary Perspectives

Edited by Ana Marta González University of Navarra, Spain

This volume explores the connections between Thomas Aquinas' doctrine of natural law and contemporary social thought. It aims to make explicit the basic notions of Thomas Aquinas's social ontology and to show how key concepts from sociology, economics, and political science relate to his ethics and social thought. Aquinas adopts a clear position on the ontological uniqueness of human beings, the intentional structure of human action, and the existence of informal social relations and institutional realities that shape human society. This volume shows how these views can be reconstructed into a coherent social ontology.

Bursting Our Epistemic Bubbles

On Trust, Inquiry, and Epistemic Communities

Heather Rabenberg SUNY Brockport, USA

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

This book develops a social epistemic framework that expands our understanding of epistemic normativity and allows us to get a clearer view of epistemic bubbles and echo chambers. It argues that paying attention to social epistemic values is crucial to understanding the problems that plague our current social and political epistemic world. The author argues that there are also epistemic norms governing inquiry and trust. Assuming that we must choose between trust and inquiry is often the source of social epistemic problems. Inquiring while trusting is a crucial epistemic balancing act, which anchors us in epistemic communities and assists us in the pursuit of knowing with others.

Charles Mills' The Racial Contract

Edited by Elvira Basevich

This book features emerging and established philosophers revisiting Charles Mills's 'The Racial Contract' twenty-five years after its publication. Each contribution reassesses the singular book's bold critique of liberalism and social contract theory, advancing and interrogating Mills's philosophical legacy. Notably lines of inquiry include the ideal/nonideal distinction, the merits of the social contract model for normative political inquiry, and the epistemology of ignorance. This book was originally published as a special issue of Critical Review of International Social and Political Philosophy.

Cities and Identities

Edited by Daniel A. Bell, Avner de Shalit

This book illustrates how cities possess unique normative identities, referred to as 'ethoses', and how the residents shape and perceive them. This collection argues that cities are emerging as new sources of identity, possessing their own 'ethoses'—distinctive normative characters. The contributors explore this idea through six cities: London, Qingdao, Tokyo, Mumbai, Istanbul, and Amsterdam. Confucian Comparative Political Philosophy

Yong Li

This book conducts a comparative study between Confucian political philosophy and contemporary political philosophy in the analytic tradition. The author demonstrates the relevance of Confucianism to contemporary discussions on important political ideals, such as equality, democracy, human rights and global justice. He also introduces individual Confucian thinkers, including both historical figures like Kongzi, Mengzi, and Xunzi, and contemporary thinkers such as Kang Youwei and Mou Zongsan. The book will appeal to graduate students and scholars studying ethics, political philosophy, and Chinese philosophy.

Dialogues on Immigration and the Open Society

Chandran Kukathas Singapore Management University.

Series: Philosophical Dialogues on Contemporary Problems

After some friendly pestering from six of his students curious about his thinking about immigration, a philosophy professor invites them to present their own ideas to him over a series of meetings throughout the term. This book is about their conversations. These dialogues introduce the reader to the most important ethical and political questions about immigration. Throughout the book, there is a strong emphasis on addressing the conceptual questions that are vital for making any headway in understanding practical issues. What is a refugee? What are rights? What is an open society? Indeed, what is immigration?

Kant's Early Followers in Political Philosophy

Edited by Reidar Maliks University of Oslo, Norway, Elisabeth Theresia Widmer London School of Economics, UK

Series: Routledge Studies in Eighteenth-Century Philosophy

Kant influenced a large research group known as "the Kantian school" in political philosophy. This volume argues that these thinkers further developed the egalitarian principles of Kantian republicanism. The chapters advance three main theses. First, the Kantians defended democracy and supported extending the franchise to workers and women. Second, several of them developed a political perfectionism, the view that equal political rights are justified for cultivating moral character. Third, they developed sophisticated theories of state legitimacy and collective action that sought to show how a people has a right to change their constitution through reform or revolution.

Political Epistemology

An Introduction

Michael Hannon University of Nottingham, UK, Elise Woodard Massachusetts Institute of Technology, USA

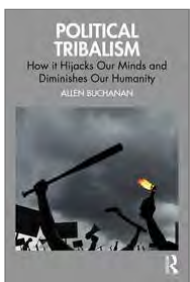

The New Scientist recently declared that "Philosophers of knowledge, your time has come" and even Barack Obama has warned of an "epistemological crisis". The rise of populism and conspiracy theories means epistemological questions are now forefront in our lives. This extremely timely introduction to political epistemology is the ideal starting place for anyone studying this fascinating and rapidly growing topic, whether in epistemology, political philosophy or applied ethics. It will also be of interest to students and researchers in related fields, such as political science, law and public policy.

Political Tribalism

How it Hijacks Our Minds and Diminishes Our Humanity

Allen Buchanan Duke University, USA.

Combining hard data with the author's personal story of a life in the U.S. South and then as a university professor, this book sheds a new light on tribalistic ideologies. Such ideologies are a deeply troubling feature of civic life in America and in many western democracies as they erode trust among citizens, sow divisions, and pervert a larger pursuit of truth and understanding. Buchanan weaves together his own autobiography with the latest research in psychology, politics, anthropology and philosophy to better understand the nature and causes of ideological tribalism, its effects on the individual and society, and the best possible solutions for curbing its spread.

Questioning the Assumptions of Political Discourse

A Philosophical Analysis of Fundamental Concepts

John Hasnas Georgetown University, USA.

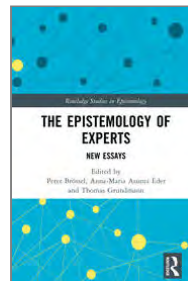

Much of our contemporary political discourse rests on unquestioned assumptions. This book questions these underlying assumptions and then offers new, unconventional answers. Each chapter of the book addresses one of these assumptions, designed to serve both an educational and an argumentative purpose. Beginning with the educational aspect by providing the reader with necessary background information and a description of the current state of intellectual debate on the relevant subject. The chapter then identifies the assumption upon which this debate rests, presenting reasons to believe that it is false, and presenting an alternative resolution to the debate.

The Epistemology of Experts

New Essays

Edited by Peter Brössel Ruhr-University Bochum, Germany, Anna-Maria Asunta Eder University of Cologne, Germany, Thomas Grundmann University of Cologne, Germany

Series: Routledge Studies in Epistemology

This volume presents new research on the epistemology of experts. It features original essays from leading epistemologists on this timely topic. The chapters explore the epistemology of expert judgment across several core themes and crucial questions, including: What does it take to be a cognitive expert? How much should we concede experts over laypeople? What role do experts play in society, and what role should they play? What problems arise from experts' epistemic authority and societal role? It is an essential resource for scholars and advanced students working in epistemology, philosophy of science, political philosophy, and the sociology of knowledge.

M.M. Thomas's Secular Commentaries on Scripture

Exegeting the World

Thomas Philip

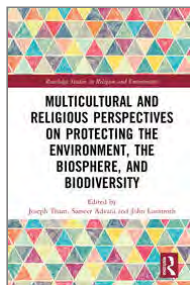

Series: Ashgate New Critical Thinking in Religious Studies See Series ID 2069

This book investigates M.M. Thomas's biblical commentaries and their unique position at the intersection of religion and society. It explores how Thomas, inspired in part by Bonhoeffer's "religionless Christianity," adapted Western theological ideas and transformed them to reflect the social, political, and religious complexities of his own pluralistic context. It is intended for scholars, graduate students, and those involved in church studies, and anyone interested in contextual theology and hermeneutics, especially for those keen on understanding Indian Christianity and exploring how theology interacts with the social and political issues present in non-Western contexts.

Natural Theology

A Reassessment

Andrew Ter Ern Loke Associate Professor at Hong Kong Baptist University.

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

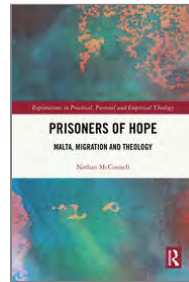

Natural Theology: A Reassessment offers corrections to widespread misinterpretations of the authoritative sources of Christian theology and shows that these sources affirm a traditional view of natural theology that refers to what can be rationally believed about God without using religious doctrines as premises. Contrary to popular misconceptions, Hume and Kant did not successfully rebut the arguments of natural theology, which are still being defended today. The author develops a multidisciplinary approach involving theology, philosophy of religion, natural sciences, social sciences, and biblical studies to move the discussion ahead in a new and significant way.

Prisoners of Hope

Malta, Migration and Theology

Nathan McConnell

Series: Explorations in Practical, Pastoral and Empirical Theology

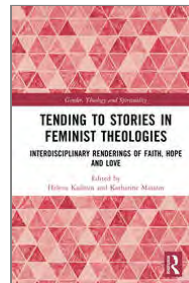

Prisoners of Hope focuses on ecclesiological and practical theological responses to migration, asylum-seeking and refugee integration and assimilation. It considers the relationship between the church and the nation-state relative to political asylum by questioning the various responses of Christians who advocate for refugees and asylum-seekers in their spheres of influence. Prisoners of Hope will be of particular interest to those attempting scholarly research in the areas of theology, religion, and migration studies.

Tending to Stories in Feminist Theologies

Interdisciplinary Renderings of Faith, Hope and Love

Edited by Helena Kadmos, Katharine Massam

Series: Gender, Theology and Spirituality

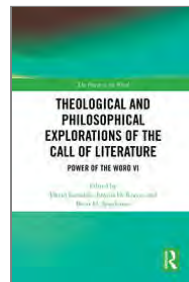

Tending to Stories in Feminist Theologies is interested in the place of story-tellers in communities of hope. Where some theologies wrestle for clarity of definition, feminist and other theologies of liberation begin from experience and tend towards story as a vehicle for speaking of the Divine. The book contributes to scholarly conversations on feminist theological method, on the relationship between the arts and theology, and on the dialogue between secular and sacred in Australasia and elsewhere.

Theological and Philosophical Explorations of the Call of Literature

Power of the Word VI

Edited by David Lonsdale, Emilia Di Rocco, Brett H. Speakman

Series: The Power of the Word

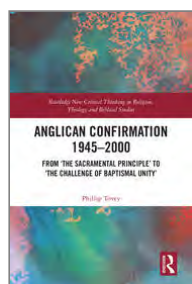

This book explores the 'call' of literature, for both writers and their audiences, and reflects on how literary works have informed and drawn from—and continue to inform and draw from— theology, philosophy and sacred scripture. The essays by an international and interdisciplinary range of contributors discuss the work and testimony of writers from William Blake, Gerard Manley Hopkins and R.S. Thomas to James Joyce, Virginia Woolf and Michel Houellebecq. This latest volume from The Power of the Word Project will be of interest to scholars from theology, philosophy and literature.

Anglican Confirmation 1945–2000

From 'The Sacramental Principle' to 'The Challenge of Baptismal Unity'

Phillip Tovey

Series: Routledge New Critical Thinking in Religion, Theology and Biblical Studies

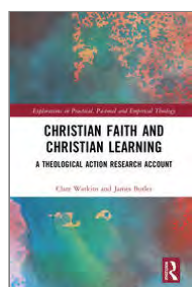

The focus of this book is the theology, liturgy and practice of Anglican Confirmation from 1945 to 2000. It is the third book in a series on Anglican Confirmation. The first chapters look at confirmation on a global and ecumenical level. This will be of great value to those in liturgical studies, church history, Anglican studies and to all bishops and clergy involved in confirmation.

Christian Faith and Christian Learning

A Theological Action Research Account

Clare Watkins University of Roehampton, James Butler

Series: Explorations in Practical, Pastoral and Empirical Theology

Following a critical analysis of the pedagogical theology and practice of Christian learning, this book develops a radical alternative account of 'faith learning'. Through close engagement with the practicalities of one declining denomination (British Methodism), the authors offer a distinctive vision of Christian learning and enable fresh thinking and practice. Ultimately it seeks to give substance to a fresh concept of 'faith learning', which is holistic, integrative and inductively achieved, and finds its fulfilment in lives lived in faith, hope, and love.

Christianity and Horror Cinema

Bryan P. Stone

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion and Film

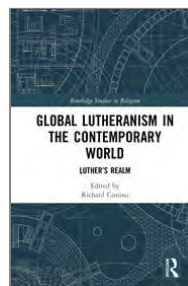

Christianity and Horror Cinema explores ways that Christian beliefs, spiritualities, practices, and symbols provide the religious and existential 'depths' out of which the monsters of Western horror cinema have emerged, arguing that they are, in several respects, the monsters for which Christians are responsible. The author examines a variety of films that are important for thinking about the relationship of Christianity to horror cinema. The book will be of interest to scholars of religion, theology, and film studies.

Global Lutheranism in the Contemporary World

Luther's Realm

Edited by Richard Cimino SUNY Old Westbury, USA.

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

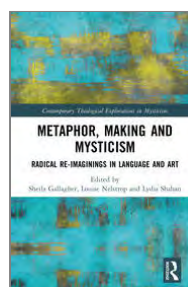

This book explores Lutheranism and its various expressions throughout the world. This Protestant tradition has spread and developed far from its European and American heartlands to take on increasingly diverse forms. The global dispersion of Lutheranism and how it interacts with different cultures and worldviews has resulted in Lutheran pluralism in theology and church practices. However complex the concept of world Lutheranism may be, this volume demonstrates that a wide angle view can best be achieved through understanding national Lutheran expressions and the 'lived religion' of these churches and their adherents.

Metaphor, Making and Mysticism

Radical Re-Imaginations in Language and Art

Edited by Sheila Gallagher, Louise Nelstrop, Lydia Shahan

Series: Contemporary Theological Explorations in Mysticism

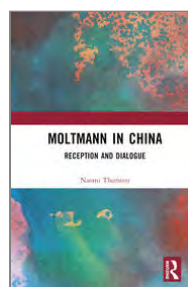

This volume focuses on the interplay between metaphor, making and mysticism and sheds new light on the power of the metaphorical and creative dimensions of the mystical for the twenty-first century. It explores the ways a variety of mystical writers deal with metaphor and image by bringing together chapters from interdisciplinary vantage points – theological, philosophical, historical, artistic, and literary. The contributions explore contemporary artists' engagement with the mystical, and how these open up new ways of reimagining our present – moving us beyond static categories such as religion vs. secular, and Christianity vs. Islam.

Moltmann in China

Reception and Dialogue

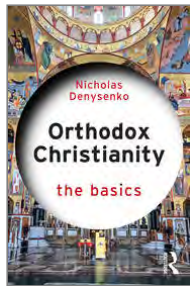

Naomi Thurston

The book explores the reception of the German theologian Jürgen Moltmann's theology within the general framework of a budding Chinese academic theology. It introduces the reception of Moltmann's theology in Chinese contexts as a dialogic process of intercultural learning and theological meaning-making, whether in readings of western intellectual history, Marxist dialogue, political philosophy, or comparative studies. The book will appeal to academics, postgraduate students, and theologians interested in World Christianity, contextual theology, and intercultural theology.

Transloyalties, Connected Histories and World Christianity during the Interwar Period

1919-1939

Edited by Frieder Ludwig, Ellen Veas Rosnes, Joar Haga, Marina Xiaojing Wang, Jairzinho Lopes Pereira

Series: Studies in World Christianity and Interreligious Relations

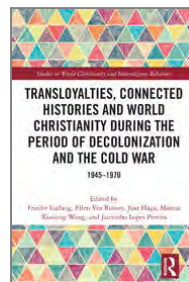

This book introduces the approach of 'transloyalties' to study 'connected histories' in World Christianity. The term 'transloyalties' is used to analyze the multifaceted processes in various contact zones through which cultural and religious identities were transformed in the tension between different loyalties including theoretical reflections and case studies, this volume is valuable reading for scholars of the history of World Christianity.

Transloyalties, Connected Histories and World Christianity during the Period of Decolonization and the Cold War

1945-1970

Edited by Frieder Ludwig, Ellen Veas Rosnes, Joar Haga, Marina Xiaojing Wang, Jairzinho Lopes Pereira

Series: Studies in World Christianity and Interreligious Relations

Focusing on the history of World Christianity, this book relates the concept of 'transloyalties' to developments during the 'Period of Decolonization and the Cold War'. This was a time when the terms 'loyal' and 'loyalty' became more frequently used, not only in the USA, where a 'loyalty programme' was introduced, but also in Africa, Asia and Europe. These are some of the questions which underlie the importance of this volume to the study of the history of World Christianity.

Universities' Purpose and Catholic Identity

Examining Governance, Communication, and Core Curriculum

Edited by Jordi Pujol, José María La Porte

This book addresses the contemporary challenges and aspirations of Catholic universities—inspired by the original idea of a university — through a rich historical, philosophical, and practical lens. It begins with an exploration of the history of secular and Catholic universities, laying a foundation for understanding their evolving roles and identities. It examines how identity and purpose must permeate all the spheres and goals: research, teaching, governance, communications, and the 'Third Mission'—the university's societal role. It was originally published as a special issue of Church, Communication and Culture.

Amazing Grace at 250

Global Heritage and Contested Legacies

Edited by Martin V. Clarke , Gareth Atkins

Series: Congregational Music Studies Series

This book focuses on arguably the best-known Christian hymn worldwide. From the slave trade to the civil rights movement and from obscurity in its country of origin to global recognition, the origins, history, influence and legacy of 'Amazing Grace' are uniquely complex. This volume brings together historians, theologians, literary scholars and musicologists to shed new light on the ways in which the hymn's lyrics, familiar musical setting and its performance by leading vocalists contribute to its enduring popularity and the meanings and value ascribed to it by diverse communities across time and place.

Communicating Esther

The Diffusion and Reception of a Biblical Dream

Elihu Katz , Menahem Blondheim

Series: Routledge Research in Religion, Media and Culture

Communicating Esther presents a communications approach to the biblical story of Esther and the ritual that it anchors, the Jewish carnival of Purim. This book discusses how story and holiday combine all of the elements of a communication process – production of content, choice of medium, seal of approval, diffusion over time and space and promotion of various forms of reception and reaction. It is a case study of 'how culture works', and how the text itself is about communicating. It will appeal to all researchers of communication and religion, communication and the Bible, and communication and Judaism.

Media, Religion and Culture

An Introduction

Jeffrey H. Mahan , James H. Thrall

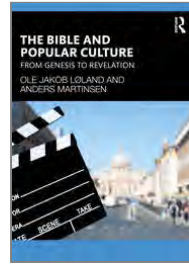

Religion has always been shaped by the media of its time. Religious individuals, communities and institutions use media as tools to communicate, but also as locations where they construct and express identity, practice religion, and build community. This lively book offers a comprehensive introduction to the contemporary field of religion, media, and culture. Thoroughly updated throughout, the book features case study examples from both established and new religions, and each chapter is followed by insightful reflections from leading scholars in the field. Illustrated throughout, the book also contains discussion questions and a glossary of key terms.

The Bible and Popular Culture

From Genesis to Revelation

Ole Jakob Løland , Anders Martinsen

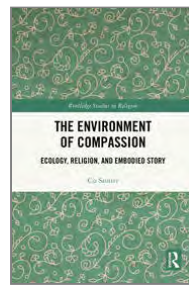

This book is an accessible overview of the Bible's complex and evolving reception in popular culture. Drawing on biblical interpretations in TV, film, and music, it demonstrates the enduring diversity of the Bible's reception history. Ranging from Genesis and Exodus to the Gospels and Revelation of the New Testament, its biblical chronology takes a book-by-book format which locates and examines various examples of how these texts have been read, received, and interpreted. Woven within these chapters is fresh analysis of how themes of parody, satire, sex, and conspiracy appear in these biblical interpretations

The Environment of Compassion

Ecology, Religion, and Embodied Story

Cia Sautter

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

The Environment of Compassion explores questions of what it means to be in relationship to nature, if and how it is a religious experience, and how understanding humans as part of nature alters theology. The book offers a performance perspective that looks at ritual, dance, and theatre as a means of presenting discussion of sacred values in the public realm. The book is relevant to scholars of religion and theology, particularly those with an interest in the environment, as well as theatre, dance and performance studies.

Theological Discourses on Social Media

Edited by Christopher B. Barnett , Clark J. Elliston , Trevor B. Williams

Theological Discourses on Social Media will examine ten different social media platforms across three overarching parts. The task throughout is, first, to delineate the configuration and intent of a given form of social media and, second, to probe its implications for theology. The upshot will be a unique theological engagement with the defining issue of our era—a work that will be as relevant as it will be engrossing. Featuring contributions from leading scholars, it will be a must-read for all students of theology, religion and media, and cultural studies.

Abuse in World Religions

Articulating the Problem

Edited by Johanna Stiebert

Series: Rape Culture, Religion and the Bible

This volume contains five chapters - each by subject experts - that demonstrate that spiritual abuse can be identified in contexts of Hinduism, Judaism, Christianity, Islam, and Sikhi(sm). The chapters draw on sacred texts, historical events, religious institutions, practices, or figures particular to each tradition, paying heed to how specific examples can relate to wider, or systemic tendencies. Throughout, there is emphasis on trauma-informed and survivor-centred approaches. Abuse in World Religions (Vol.1) will appeal to academics and religious leaders seeking to understand and to confront spiritual abuse and rape culture in their own communities.

Abuse in World Religions (Vol. 2)

Towards Solutions

Edited by Johanna Stiebert

Series: Rape Culture, Religion and the Bible

This book draws attention to the texts, mechanisms, strategies and initiatives that address and combat such forms of sexual(ised) spiritual abuse. Activities range from analysis of sacred texts, to discussion forums, digital and other forms of activism and protest, specialist training courses, support groups and survivor-led initiatives, and much more. The book will appeal to academics of religious studies with interest in rape culture and spiritual abuse, as well as upper-level undergraduates and postgraduates, and also religious leaders, or leaders of faith-based organisations, seeking to understand and to confront spiritual abuse and rape culture in their own communities.

Gender, Genocide, Gaza and the Book of Esther

Engaging Texts of Terror(ism)

Sarojini Nadar

Series: Rape Culture, Religion and the Bible

Gender, Genocide, Gaza and the Book of Esther: Engaging Texts of Terror(ism) bridges the gap between gendered and geopolitical analyses by interrogating both the sexual and ethnic violence embedded in the Book of Esther. Through a combination of narrative inquiry, inter-textual readings, critical discourse analysis, and theological assessments of both the biblical text and its contemporary reception, Gender, Genocide, Gaza and the Book of Esther invites interpreters to consider the larger frameworks of ethnicity and racialization within which hermeneutics of sexual violence take place.

Theopolitics and the Era of the Witness

Jane Barter

Series: Transforming Political Theologies

Theopolitics and the Era of the Witness focuses on witnessing in the aftermath of political atrocity or genocide. It offers a diachronic study of the relationship between theological forms of witnessing within the Jewish and Christian traditions and public forms of witnessing in the twentieth and twenty-first centuries. The book makes a valuable contribution to political theology and in particular as a work of theopolitics, which claims that theology, despite its persistent misuse, can serve a constructive and critical force within public life, albeit in a chastened key.

Flattening the Medieval Earth

Seeking the Early Modern Origins of the Idea of an Historical Conflict Between Science and Christianity

Pablo de Felipe

Series: Routledge Science and Religion Series

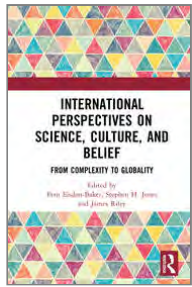

Flattening the Medieval Earth explores the origin of the 'flat error', i.e. the false accusation that ancient and medieval Christians believed in a flat Earth, and what this implies in terms of a conflict between science and Christianity. Combining history of science, Church history, science and religion, history of navigation, and historiography, the book gives the most updated explanation of the origin of the flat error, finding paradoxes and unexpected answers along the way to understand the past and to reflect on some current approaches in science and religion.

International Perspectives on Science, Culture, and Belief

From Complexity to Globality

Edited by Fern Elsdon-Baker, Stephen H. Jones, James Riley

Highlighting the natures and varieties of the interrelation between science and belief globally, this volume addresses the relationships between science, culture, and belief from multiple disciplines, methodologies and geographical contexts including South Asia, Latin America, Africa and Australia as well as Europe and North America. This work has particular relevance in the increasingly polarised post-pandemic world, shining a light for the first time on the multi-faceted interplay between social identities and cultural narratives in debates that are often about far more than the science.

Sacred Drugs

How Psychoactive Substances Mix with Religious Life

Gary Laderman

Sacred Drugs explores the numerous ways in which psychoactive substances intersect with religious life. This cutting-edge volume acknowledges the ubiquity of drug use in American society and that, in fact, being drugged with an altered state of consciousness is a common feature of American life today, as it has been throughout human history and across global ancient cultures. This book touches on the presence of drugs in a number of religious traditions, like Christianity, Hinduism, and Islam, and will be the go-to volume for readers interested in the complex relationship between religious life and psychoactive substances.

Understanding Religion and Artificial Intelligence

Meaning-Making in the Digital Age

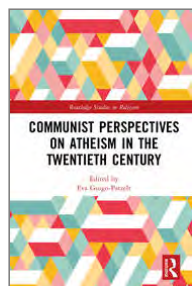

Randall Reed, Tracy J. Trothen

Is Artificial Intelligence just another tool, or is it something more... Special? Understanding Religion and Artificial Intelligence delves into this provocative question, revealing how our perceptions of AI are deeply intertwined with age-old human impulses to define the extraordinary. Introducing their innovative "Model of the Special," the authors illuminate how individuals, groups, and cultures dynamically shape AI's meaning, ranging from the mundane to the Sacred and Demonic. Using compelling case studies, the authors explore how narratives of awe, fear, and even transcendence position AI as a truly "Special thing" in our modern world

Embodied Pedagogies in the Study of Religion

Transforming the Classroom

Edited by Sravana Borkataky-Varma, Sarabindh Levy-Brightman

Embodied Pedagogies in Religion provides a forum for creative, teachers of religion to discuss ways in which they think about the embodied dimension of teaching and learning specific to their areas of expertise and how they have shaped their curriculum to engage and reflect their thinking. This volume is as an open-ended conversation that embraces the exploration of different pedagogies with different kinds of content and quests for different forms of learning and understanding, and will contribute to a developing conversation in religious studies that move beyond rigid orthodoxies to a place of open creative, productive, and enacted exploration, cultivation, and theorization.

Religion and the Domestication of Dissent

Or, How to Live in a Less Than Perfect Nation

Russell T. McCutcheon

Series: Religion in Culture

In its first edition Religion and the Domestication of Dissent focused on the events of 9/11 and the representation of Islam. Scholars and pundits effectively demonised a whole faith by wilfully apportioning blame and by ignoring the differences within the Islamic movement. This cutting-edge new edition examines how the classifications we use to name and negotiate our social worlds - notably 'religion' - are implicitly political and this volume is therefore not a descriptive but, rather, a socially formative category that accomplishes work in liberal democracies.

Studying Religion and Disability

Emily O. Gravett

Studying Religion and Disability introduces students to the many compelling and influential intersections between religion and disability. This book provokes thought and discussion around important questions, including how different disabilities are perceived, represented, and constructed in different dimensions of religion; how and why people with disabilities engage with religion; potential or documented barriers that religions present to disabled people; and opportunities and insights that result when each is viewed through the lens of the other. It will be essential reading for all students of Religion and Disability.

Sustaining Cathedrals

Sacred Space and Common Ground

Edited by Leslie J. Francis, Stephen G. Parker

In an age when churches seem to be struggling, and new initiatives remain fragile, cathedrals are displaying signs of resilience. The field of cathedral studies has emerged to test the sustainability of this resilience. This volume draws together the work of 19 individuals who are shaping the field of cathedral studies, intent on describing what they see, and keen to identify what could be. Together they position cathedrals at the heart of Anglican ecclesiology, and maintain that, properly supported, cathedrals serve as episcopal theological resource churches where sacred space and common ground collide.

Evangelical Purity Culture and Its Discontents

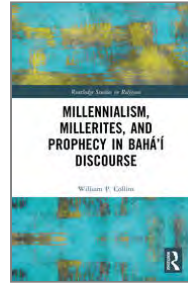

Edited by Kathryn House, Sara Moslener

This volume is a collection of cutting-edge, interdisciplinary, and creative essays that establish a new approach to the study of evangelical purity culture. It is a critical starting point for anyone seeking to understand this movement or begin their own research. Chapters in this volume employ various methods of inquiry, with some framing their work in traditional academic prose, and others making use of self-reflexive analysis to acknowledge their own experiences as informing their arguments and conclusions.

Millennialism, Millerites, and Prophecy in Bahá'í Discourse

William P. Collins

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book explores the role of millennialism, the Millerites, and prophecy in the historical development of the Bahá'í faith, and highlights the maturation of the Bahá'í community toward a capacity to deal with both catastrophe and progress. The author expresses the importance of the Bahá'í religion to millennialism studies and its connection to certain Protestant American and Shia Islamic modes of thought. The chapters in this volume reflect on theories about millennialist movements, the continuum from catastrophic to progressive millennialism, Bahá'í interpretations of biblical prophecy, and Bahá'í efforts to build the "Kingdom of God on earth" under a systematic divine plan.

From Blavatsky to Krishnamurti: "It Is Finished"

Unravelling an Esoteric Eschatology and Christology

Al Boag

Series: Gnostica

This book highlights some important continuities as well as differences between the teachings of Helena Petrovna Blavatsky (1831-1891), co-founder of the Theosophical Society in 1875, and Jiddu Krishnamurti (1895-1986), the Theosophist who was trained to be the World Teacher. Until now very little has been written of the importance to Blavatsky of an esoteric eschatology and Christology, and their relation to the secret core of her Path of Initiation: the practice of an occult breathless meditation. It will be of particular interest to students and scholars of esotericism, new religious movements, and the history of religions.

Monotheism in the New Religious Movements of Japan

Historical and Taxonomical Challenges in Western Studies

Kegan A. Chandler

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book calls for a reformation of the image of monotheism in studies of Japanese religions and in the study of religions in general. According to most scholars, 'Japan' and 'monotheism' mix like oil and water. It is especially relevant to scholars with an interest in Japanese religions and new religious movements as well as the comparative study of religion and philosophy of religion.

Hindu Bhakti Through Muslim Eyes

Islam and Caitanya Vaiṣṇavism in the Twenty-First Century

R. David Coolidge

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

Hindu Bhakti Through Muslim Eyes puts the Caitanya Vaiṣṇava tradition of devotion to Krishna in scholarly conversation with Islam for the first time. It builds on a millennium of Muslim reflections regarding Hindu theology and practice, despite common assumptions that Hindus and Muslims are destined for misunderstanding and conflict. Relevant for scholars in Islamic Studies, Hindu Studies, Interreligious Studies, Comparative Theology, and Decolonial Studies, Hindu Bhakti Through Muslim Eyes forges new ground in Muslim scholarship regarding religious and cultural pluralism.

Rediscovering Humanitarianism

Using Secular and Religious Histories to Provide New Understandings of Refugee Resettlement

Edited by Jessica Stroja Griffith University, Australia

Series: Routledge Studies in Religion

This book provides a new approach to understanding the histories of refugee resettlement and their relevance for contemporary emergencies. By drawing on histories of faith-based humanitarianism from 1917 to the present, it explores how faith-based organisations have engaged with refugee aid and the efforts of other secular humanitarian movements. This book provides new ways to understand the provision of refugee aid via a broad spectrum of organisations rather than groups from separate "categories" acting in isolation.

Seeing Through Religion

An Introduction to the Study of Religion and Religions

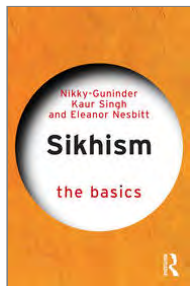

Nathan McGovern

Seeing Through Religion is a cutting-edge textbook that provides students with the tools to learn this valuable subject theoretically. McGovern argues that religion isn't a thing out there in the world; it's the glasses on your face through which you see the world, shaped by Western history and, in particular, Christianity. This textbook not only provides a survey of important religious traditions but also guides the reader on how to study religion in a methodologically sophisticated way. This innovative volume is essential reading for those who want a contemporary and engaging approach to the study of world religions.

The Blavatskian and Biblical Roots of Krishnamurti's Imagined Role

Al Boag

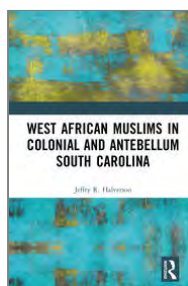

Series: Gnostica

This book focuses on Jiddu Krishnamurti (1895-1986) and charts the development of his teaching. It covers from 1922 when Krishnamurti claimed he was "God" until his death, including his declarations to be the World Teacher and eventual departure from the Theosophical Society. It considers how Krishnamurti fashioned his life and teaching on the New Testament Gospels' composite biography of Jesus, and on biblical eschatological and Christological texts. The study will be of particular interest to students and scholars of esotericism, new religious movements, and the history of religions.

West African Muslims in Colonial and Antebellum South Carolina

Jeffry R. Halverson

West African Muslims in Colonial and Antebellum South Carolina is a historical study of the presence of enslaved West African Muslims in colonial and antebellum South Carolina. Synthesizing existing material about enslaved West African Muslims, this book adds new cases, details, and insights that existing studies of enslaved Muslims in the United States have not explored. This cutting-edge volume sheds new light on the religious history of the United States and challenges the contemporary "Judeo-Christian" paradigm.

Dharma and Detachment: Writings on Indian and Tibetan Thought

Edited by Nic Bommarito Simon Fraser University, Canada, Simone Weil

This is the first volume to draw together some of Weil's most important writings on eastern thought. Expertly edited by Nicolas Bommarito, the anthology contains writings drawn from Weil's extensive Notebooks. To help the reader gain a full insight into Weil's thought, the volume also includes key passages from the classical texts that inspired her, especially the Bhagavad-Gita and the Upanishads. In addition to an Introduction by Nicolas Bommarito, a glossary and suggestions for further reading are also included, making the volume an ideal starting point for those unfamiliar with Indo-Tibetan philosophy.
